Captivity By VC 'Ultimate Bummer'

By United Press International
America's returned POWs streamed home Thursday to the arms of their families in emotional reunions at military hospitals. Two of the latest arrivals were a gaunt Army captain who described his captivity as "the ultimate bummer," and a private who balked at the welcoming crowd and did not get off the plane.

Forty men arrived at Travis Air Force Base in Northern California Thursday aboard two separate flights — bringing the total of POWs in the United States to 62, including two men rushed home Tuesday because of their critically ill mothers.

An additional 60 were set to head home Thursday night and early Friday, leaving only 20 of the 143 POWs released Monday still at Clark Air Base in the Philippines.

"I Don't Feel Well"
"I'm sorry I don't feel well. I don't want to go out," Pvt. Ferdinand Rodriguez said after he looked out the door of his "freedom flight" plane and saw a crowd of about 250 persons at Travis.

He remained inside while the plane was refueled for a flight to Scott AFB, Ill., where he was to be transferred to another plane taking him to Valley Forge General Hospital, Pa.

Rodriguez, 25, is a draftee from Brooklyn, N.Y., who disappeared April 14, 1968. He was listed as a deserter but later was found to be a POW.

Wanat Can't Agree
Army Capt. George Wanat Jr., 27, of Foxboro, Mass., captured by the Communists during the siege of An Loc in April 1972, said of the jungle prison camp, where he was held:

"There really isn't too much to say about it except that it was the ultimate bummer as far as I was concerned. They called it good, humane and lenient treatment. I would not agree with them on that. It was like I imagined it would be for a POW. It was a hard piece of cheese. I would say."

Hijack Pact Takes Effect

U.S.-Cuban Accord Signed Separately

...Political Asylum Is Preserved

Washington (AP) — The United States and Cuba signed an agreement Thursday to prosecute or extradite future hijackers.

But the five-year accord signed separately in Washington and Havana retained the traditional American policy of sheltering political refugees.

It's In Effect

Because it was an executive agreement and not a treaty, the document did not require Senate ratification and went into effect immediately.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who signed the agreement for the United States, said it served notice to hijackers that they will have "no safe haven" in the United States or Cuba.

One possible loophole was closed by a clause stating that extradition is mandatory if the hijacker has not broken the laws of the nation to which he fled.

Regarding political asylum, the agreement says a nation receiving a refugee "may take into consideration any extenuating or mitigating circumstances in those cases in which the persons responsible for the acts were being sought for strictly political reasons and were in real and imminent danger of death without a viable alternative for leaving the country."

This does not apply, however, if the refugee extorted money or threatened to harm "the members of the crew, passengers, or other persons in connection with the hijacking."

Right Said Not Limited

When asked if the tight restrictions on defining a political refugee had limited the right to grant political asylum, U.S. officials said they had not because the country receiving such a person would determine on its own if the conditions required the refugee to flee.

Rogers told a news conference after the signing that the agreement "makes it clear hijackers... cannot escape the laws of our country... or Cuba by claiming the right of asylum."

"It doesn't affect the right of asylum. What it does mean is that you cannot commit major crimes on the way to the asylum."

Cuba had insisted that the measure apply to boats as well as planes and that existing laws prohibiting attacks against the planes, ships or territory of the other country be enforced. It won both points.

Havana Accedes

On the other hand, the United States did not want the agreement to be retroactive and did want provisions for extradition, as well as prosecution, written into the text. Havana acceded to those points and to inclusion of the political-asylum provision which Rogers called a "very sacred right."

The accord "does not foreshadow a change of policies as far as the United States is concerned toward Cuba," generally, Rogers said.

He repeated President Nixon's demand that Fidel Castro change his anti-American policies as a pre-condition for improved Havana-Washington relations.

Sign Pact

Ottawa (AP) — Cuba and Canada signed an antihijacking agreement Thursday, similar to that Havana concluded with the United States.

Flanked by flags of their countries, Canadian Foreign Minister Mitchell Sharp and Cuban Deputy Foreign Minister Rene Anillo signed the pact at a brief ceremony and spoke of improving relations.

The pact provides for prosecution or extradition of hijackers of both boats and planes.

GOP Opposes Limits On Campaign Funds

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska's Republican Party Thursday declared its firm opposition to Democratic Gov. J. James Exon's bill to limit political campaign expenditures in the state.

Democratic State Chairman Hess Dyas of Lincoln expressed his party's support for the measure, LB310, introduced by Sen. Richard Fellman of Omaha at the request of the governor.

The proposal was also opposed by Secretary of State Allen Beermann, a Republican, at a lively public hearing before the Unicameral's Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committee.

It was held for later action along with LB267, Sen. Jerome Warner's proposed corrupt practices act requiring full disclosure of campaign contributions and expenditures and limiting individual contributions to $1,000.

LB267 will be subjected to further review by the committee with assistance from Beermann and representatives of both major political parties.

Fellman's bill would limit campaign advertising expenditures in the general election to twice the office's annual salary. The primary campaign limit would be one-half that amount.

LB310 affects only state offices. The spending limit is designed to meet "one of the major problems that exist in politics," Fellman, a former unsuccessful Democratic congressional candidate, told the committee.

"With enough money, one can often buy an election," he declared.

Assistant GOP State Chairman Richard Nelson of Lincoln said the wise use of campaign expenditures can now give an obscure candidate "a chance" against a better-known candidate and, more particularly, an incumbent officeholder.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha, committee chairman, said he believes "the rich party" opposes the bill "because it has more money to spend" on campaigns than the Democratic Party.

"I am very bothered that the Republican Party would take this position," Fellman told Nelson.

Fellman said former Gov. Norbert Tiemann "spent a fortune and bought" the GOP gubernatorial nomination in 1966, and he pointed to Republican Sen. Carl Curtis' expenditure of $250,000 in campaign funds in 1972.

"Do you think a poor honest man could beat a rich scoundrel?" Chambers, a registered independent, asked.

Wallace Rudolph of Lincoln, speaking for the governor, said the problem is that some candidates may "sell their soul for money," and their own principles may be "drowned" by large campaign contributions.

Beermann said he opposes the bill in principle, although he suggested it would provide "a distinct advantage" for incumbent officeholders like himself.

Spending limits would restrict a candidate's ability to be heard and, in effect, stifle freedom of speech, Beermann argued. They might force campaign spending underground, he said.

Warner said his bill requiring full disclosure would at least inform the public about spending and "eliminate the appearance of evil."

LB267 would not only limit individual contributions to $1,000, but prohibit contributions by persons holding contracts with the state and bar candidates from seeking contributions from registered lobbyists.

It would cover state and local elections. All contributions in excess of $100 would be publicly reported by name.

Penalties, which Warner said must be "strict to be effective," include forfeiture of office.

His bill does not conflict with a spending limits plan, Warner told the committee, although he believes it would be "extremely difficult to arrive at any reasonable limits."

LB310 would, by example, limit gubernatorial candidates to a $25,000 primary and a $50,000 general election campaign. Legislative candidates could spend $9,600 in the general election.

Truck-Train Crash Claims McCook Man

McCook (AP) — A McCook man was killed Thursday when the truck he was driving was in collision with a Burlington Northern freight train at a crossing on a private road about three miles west of McCook.

The State Patrol said the victim was Byron W. Harris, who was alone in the truck.

Harris was going north and the train was westbound.

The engineer on the train was Robert J. Huff of McCook.

It was believed the death would not be listed as a traffic fatality because the accident occurred on a private road.

LTC Teaching Deaf

The instructor of one of Lincoln Technical College's new classes lets his fingers do the talking, for all his students are deaf.

In an ongoing effort to provide educational opportunities for all segments of the community, LTC has recently added a basic education class for deaf adults.

According to LTC director of adult guided studies Curtis Sederburg, the month-old program was initiated at the suggestion of Berton Leavitt, a member of Lincoln's adult community.

Leavitt expressed to Sederburg a need for providing the deaf with some classes in basic education which are available to other members of the adult community. He felt that the deaf should not be deprived of the same opportunities for improving their educational level because of their disability.

Under the sponsorship and supervision of LTC the classes are held Tuesday evenings from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at Whittier Jr. High School.

Leavitt, an engineer with Cushman's, directs the classes, assisted by one of the regular LTC teachers.

Basic skills in English, reading and math are taught on an individualized basis.

Sederburg is pleased with the momentum of this initial program. After only a month, the original enrolment of six students has more than doubled.

Inspection Trip Reveals County Doesn't Have Jail

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County Commissioners Thursday made an unannounced inspection trip to the jail to fulfill a month late what they believed was a legal requirement, only to be informed that "we don't have a county jail."

County Board Chairman Robert Colin, who said the visit was made Thursday because they forgot to make the inspection in January as provided for by state law, said he was not aware that the county had no legal responsibility for the jail. The jail in the new County-City Building is now a city jail.

He said when the jailor informed the commissioners Thursday that "according to Judge (Herbert) Ronin, we don't have a county jail," Colin didn't realize the significance.

Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas, County Sheriff Merle Karnopp and the district judges told The Star that there is no question that the jail is a city jail and the county merely contracts with the city for keeping county inmates.

According to provisions of the law under the county jail section, county commissioners must visit the jail of its county once during each of its sessions in the months of January, April, July and October.

Under the sections of the law governing city jails, however, there is no provision for mandatory visit. District judges have the responsibility of making rules and regulations governing the operation of a jail in January of each year and at such other times as necessary.

Presiding District Judge Ronin and District Judge William Hastings noted that although they annually make at least one visit to the jail, it is not mandatory as alleged by the League of Women Voters.

They said that the district judges had made an inspection in January and that a meeting is being scheduled for the latter part of February or first of March with Chief Joseph Carroll and representatives of both the city and county to discuss some of the matters of the inspection.

The judges said that since the county does contract for their prisoners, they felt that they had an interest in the jail setup and should be included in such a discussion.

Peace Differences Emerge

London (AP) — East-West differences emerged Thursday over the coming Vietnam peace talks. Communist countries are objecting to United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim as conference chairman.

Diplomats of countries due to attend the Paris meeting beginning Feb. 26 reported:

—The United States, backed by most of the other five non-Communist participants, suggested informally that Waldheim, as the only true neutral, should preside over the conference. This would imply, as it was meant to, that the world body should have an active and continuing role in the peacekeeping process.

—North Vietnam, similarly supported by most of the other five Communist participants, countered by proposing the chairmanship should be shared on alternate days by the delegates of Hanoi and Washington. This would avoid, among other things, imposing an undue strain not only on Waldheim personally but on the United Nations itself.

Informants gave this version of the main issues which will confront the Vietnam peace conference in Paris:

1. A general endorsement of the cease-fire pact negotiated by the United States and North Vietnam.
2. A general definition of the conference's own tasks and standing. This will include a formal takeover of the responsibilities bequeathed, in the Vietnam context, by the 1954 Geneva conference over which the British and Russians presided.

3. A general declaration indicating whether the conference itself, or the United Nations, or a combination of both, is to be the authority charged with the final responsibility of insuring adherence to the cease-fire. The four-nation commission controlling the truce, for instance, will need a supervising authority to which to report and from which to seek guidance if disagreements arise.

Vientiane, Laos — The Laotian government and the Pathet Lao failed to reach a predicted cease-fire agreement Thursday, reportedly because the United States insisted on revisions after the two sides had reached an understanding. That, according to a principal government negotiator, caused the Communists to increase their demands, including guarantees that U.S. bases in Thailand would be closed.

Air Strikes Up In Laos

Washington — The Pentagon announced a significant increase in American air strikes against Communist troop and supply movements in Laos. Spokesmen said the strikes were a reaction to a substantial rise in the flow of military materiel from North Vietnam and stepped-up fighting in Laos.

Saigon Threatens Delay

Saigon — South Vietnam threatened to hold up the scheduled release of Communist prisoners of war if the Communists delayed the release of captured government troops. The angry threat from a military spokesman came after the Viet Cong reportedly failed to meet a promised deadline for the release of 320 South Vietnamese prisoners.

Egypt, Israel Battle

Jerusalem — After eight months of uneasy truce along the Suez Canal front, Israeli and Egyptian warplanes fought a brief battle over the Gulf of Suez with no reported losses. Later, Israeli artillery units exchanged fire with Syrian batteries near the Golan Heights, the first clash across the cease-fire line since Jan. 8.

End Of Ag Subsidies Asked

Washington — President Nixon asked Congress to return agriculture to a free market economy by phasing out crop allotments and farm subsidies that have cost the nation $48 billion in the last dozen years. The plan was the main new proposal in the President's message on the environment and natural resources. (More on Page 3.)

Further Dollar Drop Desired

Washington — At his first news conference since the recent devaluation of the dollar, Treasury Secretary George Shultz said the administration wants the price of dollars to drop even more than they have in world currency markets. Shultz refused to disclose a target value, but indicated the hoped-for decline would not involve another formal devaluation.

Wholesale Prices Rise

Washington — Wholesale prices, a major inflation index, rose sharply in January, according to the Labor Department. (More on Page 3.)

Western Rail Mergers Urged

Washington — A federal official offered a solution to help some of the nation's ailing railroads — the merger of 25 Western lines into four major systems that would handle all traffic from the Mississippi to the Pacific. The recommendation came from an examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission. (More on Page 3.)

Proxmire Wants It Stopped

Washington — Like to borrow millions of dollars from the government, interest free? That, according to Sen. William Proxmire, is precisely what at least four major defense contractors have done by a kind of ledger legerdemain. The contractors, Proxmire charged, have intercepted government money destined for employee retirement programs and used it for up to 21 months before depositing it in the retirement funds. Proxmire said the practice costs the government money and he wants it stopped.

SAIGON (AP) — American troop strength in Vietnam has fallen to its lowest level in nearly a decade and the United States is fast approaching the halfway mark in getting all its military forces out by the March 28 deadline, the U.S. Command reported Thursday.

The command said another 1,465 American troops were withdrawn during the last four days, dropping the U.S. troop level to 15,744. That is the lowest since July 1963.

At peak strength in April 1969 — almost four years ago — 543,000 U.S. troops were in Vietnam. That had dropped to 23,000 by the time the cease-fire officially went into effect Jan. 28.

procedure by the March 28 deadline.

In advance of the next regular prisoner release, North Vietnam has announced it will free 20 more Americans within the next few days as a sign of good will in the light of Henry A. Kissinger's visit to Hanoi.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the South Vietnamese command, said more than 2,100 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong prisoners have been released since Monday, including about 600 women Viet Cong in Quang Tri Province on the northern front below the demilitarized zone and at Loc Ninh 75 miles north of Saigon near the Cambodian border.

Hien said the Communists have released more than 700 South Vietnamese prisoners but have failed to live up to their promise to free 300 held in Pleiku Province. He said if the Communist side does not release the Pleiku prisoners soon, Saigon will free only 4,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong captives instead of the 7,000 planned in the first group. The commitment of the Communist side was to free 1,000 prisoners in the first batch, Hien said.

Both the Saigon government and the Viet Cong complained their prisoners have been ill treated.

The director of South Vietnam's armed forces medical department said more than half the Saigon government's returned prisoners have been hospitalized for emergency treatment of malaria, lung infections and skin diseases.

The official Saigon radio quoted one unidentified returned prisoner as saying that he was detained in Cambodia at four different sites.

"The detainees were kept together," his statement said. "Each was given three meals a day, each meal consisting of a bowl of rice with some salt. Sometimes, a single chicken was cooked for 300 POWs."

"We were given porter assignments, carrying bags of rice back and forth for 60 kilometers. Seventy of the 400 South Vietnamese in the camp died while I was there."

Another returned prisoner identified as Nguyen Thanh Ha said, "We had to plant potatoes and manioc to supplement our daily diet of a bowl of rice and some dried fish. Occasionally we had thin slices of meat and some salt."

The Viet Cong radio said many of the released Communist prisoners denounced the Saigon administration for "killing and wounding tens of thousands of POWs."

North Vietnam's official Communist party newspaper Nhan Dan also claimed South Vietnam has "refused to let us have about 10,000 of our military, whom the Saigon administration calls 'Chieu Hoi' soldiers."

Husband Greeted

Nancy Burer, the wife of Maj. Arthur Burer, leaps into the arms of her husband after he arrived at Andrews Air Force Base early Thursday. Burer was in the first group of POW's to reach the United States. From Rockville, Md., he was captured March 21, 1966, by the North Vietnamese and is now 40 years old. Burer received a bachelor's degree in 1964 from the University of Omaha.

Americans Flock
To Change Dollars

London (UPI) — Three European countries announced official devaluations of their own currencies Thursday and the dollar price of gold soared to a record high for the second consecutive day.

As repercussions of the dollar devaluation spread across Europe, Americans flocked to tourist offices and banks to change their dollars into Swiss francs and German marks, watching the value of their own currency gradually shrink.

"We are the poor Americans now," said Scott Selinger, a medical student at the University of Wisconsin, who was visiting Vienna. "Every time we go to a bank it seems we get less for our money than the day before."

American Express and banks reported that thousands of Americans were dumping their dollars for other currencies across the continent.

Wally Cox Found Dead

Hollywood (UPI) — Wally Cox, television's "Mr. Peepers" and the mischievous, mild-mannered wit of "The Hollywood Squares," died of a heart attack Thursday at the age of 48.

An autopsy showed that Cox suffered a coronary. The coroner said the body showed traces of a drug, though not at a high level.

Firemen were summoned to the Cox home in Bel-Air, high in the Hollywood Hills, early Thursday by his wife and he was pronounced dead.

For more than 20 years Cox represented the little man confronted by overwhelming obstacles, first as "Mr. Peepers," the timid school teacher, and later as a Walter Mitty type in "Hiram Holliday."

Mystery
POW Flies
Back Home

San Francisco (UPI) — The 25-year-old mystery civilian prisoner of war who remained in Saigon after his release from the Viet Cong flew home alone Thursday after a meeting with his Vietnamese girl friend.

Richard Waldhaus, 25, of Pittsburg, Calif., who was listed as a civilian student when he was captured in South Vietnam by the Viet Cong Feb. 4, 1969, was expected to arrive here aboard a Pan American World Airways flight.

Diplomatic sources said Waldhaus, a former Army medic, met the unidentified girl while serving in Binh Duong Province just north of Saigon. After he left the Army he returned on his own to South Vietnam as a civilian to find her. Somewhere along the line, he was captured.

Wednesday, two days after his release, Waldhaus left the U.S. Army's 3rd Field Hospital on the outskirts of Saigon to look for her. The Army provided a helicopter and Waldhaus found his girl's old village, but not her, the sources reported.

Waldhaus returned to Saigon and the girl unexpectedly turned up at the 3rd Field Hospital Thursday. She and Waldhaus met privately, the sources said, and he later left. The girl stayed behind.

World News

The speed of U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam is significant because the peace agreement signed in Paris Jan. 27 links U.S. prisoner releases with the rate of the U.S. pullout.

During the first 15 days of the cease-fire, the United States withdrew about one-fourth its forces, at a rate of about 400 men a day. On the 16th day, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong released about one-fourth the prisoners they hold in North and South Vietnam and Laos.

By the end of this month, U.S. troop strength should drop to about 10,000, and the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong should release roughly 143 American prisoners, the same number they freed in North and South Vietnam on Monday. Similarly, there should be another 25 per cent U.S. troop cut around the middle of next month, matched by an equal prisoner release, and a fourth and final repeat of this

FBI Probing Bugging Device

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is investigating whether whoever left behind a tiny transmitter was really trying to bug the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The committee's people frankly doubted it. The FBI wasn't talking.

Chairman Thomas E. (Doc) Morgan, D-Pa., said Thursday the "sophisticated transmitter with self-contained microphone and batteries" the size of a pack of cigarettes was found lying openly on top of a table in the committee's main hearing room

Monday morning.

A staff member said the gray metallic transmitter had no tape or other evidence of having once been hidden under a table or chair when an aide walked past the table Monday and saw it lying there.

But he said the entire investigation had been turned over to the FBI and he could not be sure a janitor, for example, had not jostled it from a hiding place and put it on the table.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., a committee member, said he had been trying for years to open up all of its meetings for the public to hear.

"Now, with the discovery of this bugging device," Findley said, "it seems as if many of our hearings may have been more open than we thought."

The committee said the only closed Foreign Affairs Committee meeting scheduled so far is an organizational one next Tuesday—although it said some Nixon administration officials may brief the committee in closed sessions later.

Chairman Morgan's statement said the committee at first assumed the device was a "bellboy" left behind by one of the officials accompanying Secretary of State William P. Rogers in the hearing room last Thursday.

Morgan said he turned the investigation over to the FBI when the State Department looked the device over and said it was not a "bellboy" used to call people to telephones, but an electronic transmitter.

Morgan said the FBI spent all day Wednesday inspecting the Foreign Affairs Committee's rooms but found no bugging devices.

Railroad Merger Urged

Wholesale Prices Jump

Washington (AP) — Wholesale prices went up sharply in January for the second straight month, the government said Thursday, with the price of food leading the increases.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that the wholesale price index rose 1.3% on an unadjusted basis last month and 1.1% on a seasonally adjusted basis. Although the rise was smaller than that of December, it was still a big jump in prices at the wholesale level.

The bureau said that prices of farm products and processed foods went up by 3.3%. Adjusted for seasonal variations, the BLS figured this increase at 2.9%.

Significant Rises

The bureau noted significant price rises for meats, fresh vegetables, eggs and processed poultry.

Also, there were big rises in such farm products as livestock, live poultry plant and animal fibers, milk and wheat.

The report presaged price increases in these items at the retail level.

The BLS blamed the January increase in food prices on the impact of severe weather and strong export demand.

Annual Rate Of 28.2%

During the six months that ended in January, wholesale prices of farm products and processed foods and feeds went up at an annual rate of 28.2%. In the last three months ending in January, they have gone up at an annual rate of 45.1%, the report said.

During the period of wage and price controls, food prices at the wholesale level rose by 16.4%, the BLS added.

Invitation Taken Too Literally

When his gas pedal stuck, this motorist took the standing invitation to stop in and chat too literally at a police drop-in office. The car travelled over the sidewalk and into the side of the building. No one was injured. Police said their invitation still stands, even though this sort of visit was probably not what they had in mind.

Congress Asked For 27 Actions

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon asked Congress Thursday for 27 environmental or natural resources actions, including the first federal control over the nation's supply of drinking water.

His requests range from a state-enforced program to restore strip-mined land, to an attempt to modify the weather to reduce danger from storms to life and property.

The lengthy message also dealt with the administration's farm proposals, in line with Nixon's decision to treat the farm industry as a natural resource. There will be no specific farm bill this year, Nixon said, but the administration will work with Congress to try to eliminate farm subsidies for other than holding land out of production.

In his message to Congress, Nixon reintroduced 19 pieces of legislation which did not pass during the last session and added eight others — five of them legislative proposals and three of them requests for ratification of treaties dealing with the preservation of historic sites, dumping in the oceans, and marine pollution control.

Among the proposals is a request that the big highway trust fund — which consists of road-building money from gasoline taxes — be used to help build urban mass transit systems. Train said Nixon rated that idea one of the highest priorities for action this year by congress.

Here are some of the major proposals in Nixon's message:

—The states would enforce federal standards to make sure that drinking water is healthy. Current federal law is limited to dealing only with water in interstate commerce. Water suppliers would have to notify their customers when health standards have not been met.

—The states would enforce federal standards on strip mining, to make sure that land from which coal is removed would be returned to its "original contours."

—The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) would oversee and coordinate weather modification programs.

—A tax would be levied on industries which pollute the air with sulphur oxides — usually the result of burning high-sulphur coal.

—New programs to head off soil erosion which causes a massive amount of water pollution.

—A program to set a national land-use policy so that state and local governments can make the best use of the remaining undeveloped land in the nation.

The Burlington Northern would get parts of the Colorado and Southern, the Rock Island, and the Fort Worth & Denver Railroad.

If the smaller railroads agreed to consolidate with the bigger railroads, the mergers would be "a most important step toward the ultimate resolution of the basic problems that have plagued the industry for over a half century," Klitene said.

He argued that shrinking of the rail system would "be a giant step forward" toward setting up a "highly efficient coast-to-coast rail system" with each remaining railroad "completely competitive and financially strong."

The ICC does not have the power to force the Western railroads to join in the mass consolidation. Each railroad would have to enter into negotiations, and any agreement must be presented to the ICC for approval.

9-Day-Old Baby Given Electronic Pacemaker

Kansas City (AP) — A 9-day-old boy has been given a new lease on life at Children's Mercy Hospital here with the installation of an electronic pacemaker for his abnormally-beating heart.

Doctors say such pacemakers are not unusual in older patients and are sometimes implanted in children a year old.

But Dr. Thomas M. Holder, the pediatric heart surgeon who operated on the baby, explained it is extremely rare for a newborn to develop congestive heart failure and thus it is just as rare for a pacemaker to be implanted in a 9-day-old child.

have to be extended or replaced as the child grows.

He said the infant will have to be examined periodically and will undergo a change of batteries about every two years. This would involve opening the skin over the battery pack.

Dr. Holder said the infant had experienced no difficulties since the surgery and was to be released.

Not The First

"We certainly aren't the first to perform this procedure," Dr. Holder said. "But it is unusual for a child to be suffering from this condition at this early age."

Congestive heart failure is the inability of the heart to effectively contract and pump blood. The infant, who was not identified, was registering only 30 heart beats a minute before the surgery.

Dr. Holder said heart-stimulating drugs were first used on the baby. Then, an external pacemaker was placed outside his chest to electrically stimulate the heart. Both methods failed.

Finally, the pacemaker was inserted.

Smaller Model

The baby's pacemaker is smaller than those used in adults and contains only two batteries. Adult models contain four batteries, he said.

Dr. Holder explained the chest wall is opened to expose the heart and a thin wire is passed into one of the heart chambers. The battery pack is placed under the skin of the abdomen to send the electric impulses through the wire to the heart muscle.

Dr. Holder said the wire carrying the electric impulse will "play out" and the wire will

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

It occurs to this writer that he has noticed of late more criticism than usual of various aspects of our national life. As one looks at such criticism, he searches for those specifics which lend an argument validity, that give it meaning beyond the philosophical and often finds them hidden from view.

Additionally, it is not right that we constantly look at what is wrong and never stop to think about that which is right with the nation and its people. In two areas, it seems, is the nation frequently held up to ridicule—the moral standards of the people and their value system.

Quite properly, the two are very interrelated and cover such things as crime, drug abuse, divorce, abortions, discrimination, poverty, etc. By way of values, we look critically upon financial gain and equate this with environmental pollution.

A host of other matters comes into the picture. A prominent one is the automobile and the problems that it has given society. You can go on from there to find an indictment of just about every physical aspect of modern life.

Some of the criticisms that are heard in these areas are certainly valid and it is folly for anyone ever to sit back and assume that they have reached a pinnacle from which no further progress should be expected.

It is absolutely true that, whatever we have done as a society in the past, we have an opportunity and a responsibility to improve things in the future. And only a fool would say that, as a nation, we have no serious challenges in our national life.

But we ought also to examine the entire picture. Divorce and abortion, for instance, are not what we would call points of pride in our society but do they serve as a wholesale indictment of our moral standards?

Are there really any elements of moral decay within our society that serve to indict us as a whole? Not so, we believe, if you take a look at the other side of the coin.

It is wrong to state that family life in this nation has been sold down the river. It is wrong to imply that young people generally have taken to booze and/or pills. It is in error to claim that, as a people, we have ignored the plight of underprivileged and that we have sacrificed all compassion, kindness and generosity on the altar of the almighty dollar.

To realize the truth of this, all you have to do is look around. Family life in this nation is as strong as it has ever been—witness the nearly 100% of wives who have patiently and prayerfully waited to be reunited with their returning prisoner-of-war husbands.

Witness the overwhelming numbers of people in neighborhoods throughout the nation who are leading constructive lives and seeking to perpetuate through their children a continuing respect for human values and individual dignity.

And witness the efforts that have been made in so many areas of social welfare that no one could possibly name them all. In education, health care, housing, employment and even in the fundamentals of food and clothing, we have honestly sought as a people to upgrade the standard of living for everyone.

To be sure, we have not succeeded in all efforts but we have not ignored our responsibilities. And has our pursuit of financial security as it might be defined today been an evil thing?

Is it really evil that we can travel by car rather than by horseback, that we can put our clothes in a machine for washing rather than beating them on a rock in a stream, that we can drink pasteurized rather than raw or natural milk? Yes, we do have a long way to go but we also have come a long way already.

PRUDENCE CREWDSON

Mobile-Home Living Praised, Condemned

WASHINGTON — Fifty years ago an enterprising Virginian installed some cots and a gas stove in his battered old Studebaker and took up residence along the highways of the Eastern Seaboard. Before long, a growing army of highway nomads advanced to trailers and then, in the fifties, to mobile homes. No longer the symbol of a transient subculture, mobile homes now constitute the only kind of housing that many families of moderate income can afford.

"The mobile-home industry has now grown so large that it can no longer be ignored," President Nixon declared in 1970. That year the new census revealed that the number of households in mobile homes had nearly tripled in the previous decade, from 767,000 in 1960 to 2,073,000 in 1970. The booming "home-on-wheels" industry now produces almost all housing in the country selling for less than $15,000.

The census reported that mobile homes were especially popular among young families who could not yet afford downpayments on conventional houses. A government survey in 1967 showed that while most mobile-home buyers have incomes above the official poverty line, many are in the $4,000-$8,000-a-year range.

Now that the mobile-home industry has "come of age," as the Mobile Home Manufacturing Association proclaimed in 1971, it can expect persistent attacks from environmentalists and sociologists, as well as from local groups who see "trailers" as a blight on their communities. Richard J. Margolis, a critic of the industry, estimates that at least one-half of all mobile homes produced between 1960 and 1970 already have been scrapped, and he concludes that they are "peculiarly disposable, a new kind of shelter designed to be consumed rather than enhanced or improved."

Margolis predicts: "Our landscape will soon be groaning beneath a mobile-home graveyard of an ugliness beyond surmise." But Ronald Jones, a spokesman for the industry's trade association, argues that the market for used mobile homes proves their durability and appeal. As a result of the government's recently announced freeze on low-income housing programs, Jones suggests, more poor families may turn to used mobile homes.

"The housing issue is going to be in the seventies what the auto issue was in the sixties," predicts consumer advocate Ralph Nader. If so, mobile-home safety is likely to be of major concern. Several studies have shown that fires cause more fatalities and property damage in mobile homes than in conventional houses. The former also are more vulnerable to damage from high winds.

The Housing Act of 1968 set a national goal of 26 million new homes by 1978, of which six million were to be low-cost dwellings. Many officials now believe that the goal can be reached only through increased use of "industrialized" housing—that is, mobile and modular homes.

'There You Are, My Good Man. Spend It Wisely'

Deterrent Or Not?

As the debate over the death penalty waxes furiously across the nation following last year's Supreme Court decision that ruled capital punishment unconstitutional, it is interesting to note a study on the subject coming out of Canada.

Commissioned by the Canadian government, the study found that the recent increase in the number of murders in Canada was not the result of the elimination of capital punishment five years ago. "Nothing emerges from the study of trends in violent crimes in Canada that would support or even suggest the proposition that the suspension of capital punishment has caused an increase in the homicide rate," said the final report of the study. "In deciding the question of re-introduction of capital punishment," the report said, "re-introduction (cannot & so forth) cannot be justified on the argument that it is a more effective deterrent to potential killers than the alternative of protracted imprisonment." And drawing on data from the U.S., the Canadian study said "empirical data does not lend support to the argument that capital punishment offers superior protection to policemen, prison guards or inmates."

Re-introduction of the death penalty for certain crimes in terms consistent with the court edict is now being debated by state legislatures in the U.S., the Nebraska Unicameral among them.

It's unlikely that the Canadian study, which echoes the opinions of numerous penologists and social scientists, will have much impact on those states which have traditionally maintained a hidebound reliance on the revenge concept of punishment.

Moral arguments and empirical data are brushed away by many legislators who mask their — and their constituents' — less humane instincts and their need to grab hold of a politically popular issue behind the deterrence argument. The argument that capital punishment deters potential killers is being shot full of holes, but at the same time, tragically, the argument that in a civilized society, the state should not take the life of one of its subjects, is laughable to perhaps a majority of the population.

In this regard, it's also interesting to note that the Soviet Union today ranks No. 1 among industrialized nations when it comes to executions. Of course, in the Soviet Union, the state isn't merely playing God, it IS God.

Would-Be Candidates Restless

We haven't even become accustomed yet to writing "1973" on our checkbook and already some leading Nebraska Republicans are overtly sounding out the possibilities of unseating Jim Exon when the governorship race rolls around next year.

It may seem early, but it isn't. There never really is an intermission on the political stage. GOP National Committeeman Richard Herman sounded like he was ready to throw his hat in the ring in a partisan attack on the Democratic administration's leadership at Kearney Wednesday night. The Omaha trucking executive says he has not yet reached a decision on the race, but he has announced a stepped-up schedule of speaking engagements.

The night before Herman's Kearney speech, Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, chief of the Legislature's Appropriations Committee, said he was closer than ever before to declaring for the state's top job. Marvel did not directly attack Gov. Exon, instead he stressed his legislative experience and acknowledged that his long exposure to other candidates for higher office has sparked his own interest to do battle for bigger stakes. Marvel's "independent" decision, he said, will come after legislative business is cleared up this spring.

The names of Herman, Marvel, Lt. Gov. Frank Marsh, Valentine rancher Dwight Dam and others have been speculated upon in recent months, but it now appears that fish-or-cut-bait time is fast approaching.

It could be that one or several of the leading GOP contenders might wait too long to wage a successful ground floor primary campaign while looking for a rupture in Gov. Exon's seemingly solid support among Nebraska voters.

JACK ANDERSON

Aftermath Of An Arrest

WASHINGTON — The jailing of my friend and associate, Les Whitten, has taught me a lesson about America.

He was arrested in the act of reporting a news event. His constitutional rights were violated by FBI agents who had sworn to uphold the Constitution. His notes were ripped from his hands and he was stopped from writing a story that would have embarrassed the FBI.

For he had found the Broken Treaties Papers that the Indians stripped from government files and carted out of Washington right under the eyes of the FBI. He had inspected thousands of the documents and had extracted the news from them while the FBI scoured the country in vain for them.

Then, as the final indignity, Whitten had showed up to witness the return of the first batch of documents. Frustrated FBI agents, helpless to stop the theft or to locate the stolen papers, swooped down on Indian leader Hank Adams before he could deliver the documents the last few blocks to the government. Whitten was present to report the news.

He was expected. The FBI had been emboldened, we now know, by word from the White House to make a case against us. For the White House also didn't like what he had been writing. Our real crime, in other words, was to dig out stories that made the government look bad. Make no mistake about it. That's the only reason Les Whitten was arrested.

I was outraged, of course. Then some heartening things began to happen. Senator Ed Muskie, D-Me., detached his Lincolnesque frame from his desk and rose slowly on the Senate floor. Only last year, we had obtained documents from his own private files and had published some embarrassing extracts. But there was Muskie standing tall in the Senate, defending our right to do so. Said Muskie of the Whitten arrest: "The administration has opened up a new front in its campaign against the First Amendment."

Another legislator who has felt the prick of our needle, Rep. Pete McCloskey, R-Calif., phoned us for details of the arrest. He said he will seek a probe of FBI activities.

Representatives Lloyd Meeds, D-Wash., chairman of the House Indian Affairs subcommittee, invited us testify on what we have learned about the government's mistreatment of Indians.

The moment Rep. Ogden Reid, D-N.Y., heard of the arrest, he phoned Whitten's wife, Phyllis Representative Fred Rooney, D-Pa., didn't hear about it until later. Then he put in an immediate call to the D.C. jail and offered to stand personal bond if necessary. Senator Jim Abourezk, D-S.D., also made inquiries in behalf of both Whitten and Adams.

In the Maryland legislature, Charles Docter offered a joint resolution saying the arrest "smacks of harassment of newspaper reporters and censorship of news, which cannot be tolerated in a democratic society."

The outpouring of editorial support was also overwhelming. "Mr. Whitten and Mr. Anderson are being punished for revealing the contents of the papers — not for possessing and concealing them," editorialized the Nashville Tennessean. "If the reporters had concealed the contents instead of writing about them, it is likely no arrest would have been made."

Voiced the Buffalo Courier Express: "This brazen attempt to intimidate reporters by arrest,

MILAN WALL

Serious Stewardship

Talking about goals and objectives for programs in carpet-laying, roof repair or window replacement may not be the most exciting aspect of public life, but it does indicate the effort being made in the Lincoln public schools to attempt to achieve a high-quality stewardship of the tax dollar.

Those were some of the programs approved earlier this week by the Lincoln Board of Education, when the board adopted facility maintenance and improvement goals for 1973.

The goals are set into a "program-budgeting" format, a concept which amounts to a relatively new way to decide how to spend money in the future — which means deciding what's most important, exactly what needs to be done, and which priorities should be put first.

Under a program-budgeting concept, one generally starts by determining what results ought to be achieved. Those results become the goals. Objectives are then determined in more detail to decide how to reach the goals, and programs are built to fit the objectives. Finally, it's all put into a time frame, priorities are set and, if it's done fully, an evaluation technique is devised to see if the objectives have been met.

That process is sometimes called PPBES, for program planning, budgeting, evaluation system.

Program budgeting is very new in public institutions, and it rode into schools on the accountability trend.

The cry for accountability has said that public institutions ought to be better stewards of the tax dollar. And one good way to do that is to make sure that the people who operate in the institution understand what they should be doing, how they should go about it, and how to tell if they are successful.

In the Lincoln public schools, each building is rated according to an adequacy score, and the higher the score, the better the shape of the building.

Thus, the goal for the facilities improvement program says: "It is the goal of the district to continuously upgrade facilities to better meet the instructional needs of students but within the limitations of a four-mill tax levy. When measured annually by a facility adequacy score sheet, the building average score will increase."

Thus, the goal says facilities must be improved, but sets a limit on the money to be spent — the four-mill levy permitted for construction purposes. That says that no further bond issues are envisioned to accomplish the goal.

And, as a measure to see if the program is working, the goal says the average adequacy score should keep going up.

The goal is followed by a program statement and an outline of subprograms, as in ceiling improvement, carpeting, and television capability.

And the priorities are listed: —immediate needs for new construction to house students because of growth or population shift.

—remodeling to facilitate program change.

—remodeling based on analysis as determined by adequacy score.

A program for plant maintenance calls for a systematic maintenance plan, based on an annual cost, and with the goal of seeing that maintenance considerations are coordinated with facility improvements.

Goals, programs and priorities are then set for each of the subprograms under maintenance and under facility improvement.

Program budgeting in maintenance and improvement is rather easily done, at least when compared with program budgeting in academic programs.

Academics tend to be a bit nervous about the task of quantifying something they tend to think of as unquantifiable.

But valiant efforts are also being made in the schools to set goals, programs, priorities and evaluation techniques in the academic areas.

Each of the school district's consultants (academic program experts) has been given the task of setting his program goals into the program-budgeting format, as well.

And at recent school board meetings, the various consultants have been appearing one at a time to show the board their work.

At this week's meeting, the industrial education consultant distributed a 39-page document that set out the goals for industrial ed and then gave the assessment objectives for the junior high program.

Some of the assessment objectives are relatively simple, but others show the effort to which the schools are going to attempt to measure what they're doing.

For example, one assessment objective in graphic arts says: "By the end of the unit on letter press, 90% of the students will be able to set type in the upper case with 90% accuracy."

That's pretty detailed, and it shows the extent to which the schools are willing to go to establish known methods for measuring their progress.

The program budgeting effort is a long process, and a complicated one, but in the end, it should tell teachers more about how they are doing and give the public assurance that the schools know how tax money is being spent and whether it's worth it.

It's also another indication that the Lincoln public schools take their public stewardship task seriously.

In view of the fact that the Nebraska Legislature has already ratified the Equal Rights Amendment, we strongly oppose any decision to rescind that vote. We question the wisdom of the present action. We are convinced that this legislative ambivalence weakens our democratic process.

In the past century, certain groups of our nation's populace have been granted limited rights through constitutional amendments. The Equal Rights Amendment will secure social equity for the entire citizenry. Consequently we urge Nebraska's legislators to uphold the Unicameral's ratification of the amendment to our national Constitution.

Support For ERA

Lincoln, Neb.

The Nebraska Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, through its elected representatives, reaffirms its complete support of the Equal Rights Amendment. The amendment represents a concept that business and professional women have supported for many years. Not only is the amendment supported by the more than 1600 members of the Nebraska Federation but also by nearly 200,000 other women in business and the professions who are members of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

The argument has been advanced that our interest in the amendment has been primarily a selfish one because of our business and professional affiliations. In May of 1972, Mrs. Elizabeth Koontz, former president of the National Education Association and currently director of the Women's Division of the United States Department of Labor, pointed out that particularly disadvantaged young women and girls would benefit greatly from the amendment.

The object of the amendment is to benefit ALL women, and in a larger sense, the entire nation.

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women has studied this proposal for many years, intensively the past ten years, carefully looking at the position from all sides, and are thoroughly convinced that the Equal Rights Amendment is overdue. Any attempt to rescind the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment would be short sighted, ill advised and not in the best interest of women and the Nation.

Fair Taxes

Lincoln, Neb.

The Lincoln resident who wrote that the farthest kind of wheel tax would be to tax every car or truck in the entire state of Nebraska has the right idea, but why should it be an extra wheel tax that takes the poor the same as the rich? If the tax that pays for the upkeep of these roads is not enough, then those taxes should be raised, but they must be the same in every county in the state. Then a person would not even have a chance to cheat on his taxes, as they would be the same no matter where his vehicle was registered.

Thus extra tax is not only needed in every city, but the entire state as well. Has anyone driven on U.S. Highway 30 between Schuyler and Columbus lately? There are many other roads in the state that very much need repairing and all we hear nowadays is building freeways and expressways. The state does not have money to repair existing roads, so let's forget about freeways until there is money available. And the city of Lincoln should forget about its so-called Northeast Radial until all existing streets have been completely resurfaced. Then they wouldn't have to fill all those chuckholes every couple of weeks.

Lice Aftermath

Lincoln, Neb.

I read The Star's recent article on the new infestation of lice. However, nothing was said about the second phase which will, if not blocked, follow.

As a naturalized citizen, I feel it my duty to tell this country of my own experience in the Russian army. An infestation of lice and negligence of hygiene can cause typhus and typhoid fever, which can spread like a forest fire. It happened in Russia during World War I. The Russians have learned about it. How about us?

We watched the returning POW's on TV, and all seemed to be in decent shape. A good lesson.

POSTCARD

San Francisco — I have a lime tree that is doing well. I keep it in a tub on the outer deck.

A good many people have done well with plants by playing music to them. Absolute fact. A young lady in Arizona won first prize at a county fair with flowers she played music to.

The dispatch did not say what music she played. Hard rock? Something in waltz time?

I give the lime tree a few bars on the guitar whenever I have a guitar fit.

I play "The Night Before They Stretched O'Leary." It's a patriotic number. Stirs the leafy corpses.

Nature should be approached like you enter a cage full of lions. A whip in one hand. Kitchen chair in the other. An eye on the exit.

I planted lettuce once. I was sharpening a tooth for my own garden salad.

"Nature keeps everything in balance," said the garden book.

If you raise lettuce, Max, you upset the balance at grocery stores. Nature took care of this by sending an invasion of worms. A kind of worm you never see until you raise lettuce.

Wise Mother Nature! She doesn't love me. But she surely loves the manager of the supermarket.

CARMICHAEL

THE BIG DIFFERENCE WITH HEXACHLOROBENZYL-SAL-ACETIC-HYDROXYPHENYLAMIDE IS IT'S MEDICATED--- worked to loamy condition." So says the garden editor.

I think I have a green thumb. ("That boy is all thumbs," said grandma.)

"Now is the time to plant lettuce," says the garden ad — what a job that bloke has! I would like to get paid for writing about when to plant begonias.

Editors miscast me. I wanted to be a crime reporter, they sent me out to interview talking dogs. I wanted to chase four-alarm fires, they sent me to talk to cats rescued by firemen from telephone poles.

About Nature I could write a book.

Roses do well in my garden. I don't know why. I don't play guitar to them. I don't give them quantities of water or Plant-Gro.

Yet the rose bushes bloom like wild. Full of big red roses. Why can't lettuce grow like that?

I put out beer for the snails. You are supposed to put out stale beer instead of poison which pollutes us all. I put it in a pie tin and the dog drank it.

I didn't kill any snails. But between us, the dog and I killed two bottles of beer. Sat around all morning laughing and scratching and got nothing done.

"For nature ever faithful is. To such as trust her faithfulness."

That was written by the poet Emerson — a man who had mighty little experience raising lettuce if you ask me.

The lime tree grew a whole bunch of limes and we used them in gin slings. Thus we balanced the budget for the gin people.

Mother Nature loves the distiller.

Instead of loaming up the soil I get out the guitar. I gave the plants a couple of choruses of "I'll Bet You're Sorry Now, Tokyo Rose."

Nobody knows exactly why, but it is documented that plants respond to attention. Some people have had great success by praying to their plants. (But I must be in the wrong chapter.)

Some people have raised plants by laughter. You must laugh with the plant. Not at it.

The children said: "When will the lettuce be ready to eat?" I said: "Get my guitar and a bottle of beer and I'll tell you about it."

Taft Outlines Need For Reforming Political Parties

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer
U.S. Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio said here Thursday that American political parties are in "great need for review, realignment and renewal."

In an evening speech to a small University of Nebraska-Lincoln audience, Taft suggested that political parties must establish broader bases while not "selling out" to any one pressure group.

Taft also said he will continue to push for party reform in Congress and in Ohio, where he serves on the state Republican central committee, and he said the presidential parties should be reformed to make presidential campaigns more effective.

Various Parties
Taft began his speech with a rundown on the various "parties" within the major political parties. Those parties run from the grassroots organizations to the state parties to the presidential and congressional parties.

He said he's been interested in reform of the congressional parties because he believes the responsibilities for legislative programs must rest with the elected leaders of the party in power.

With congressional committees in the hands of chairmen put there through a seniority system, however, failure of political leadership too often results from personalities rather than from the parties themselves.

Man Responsible
Thus, he said, because Rep. Wilbur Mills dominates the House Ways and Means Committee, failure to enact meaningful tax reform rests with Mills himself and not with the Democratic Party. Similar situations hold in the Republican Party, said Taft.

"The parties are not responsible as parties," he said. "Congressional parties need great strengthening."

In the last national election, he said, the President appeared to receive a vote of confidence, while "the Congress received a vote of no-confidence" as many longtime congressmen were defeated.

"The Congress is not as effective a policymaking body as intended by the Constitution and, I think, wanted by the people," said Taft.

Reform Primaries
The Ohio senator, who was elected to the Senate in 1970 after serving in the House of Representatives and earlier in the Ohio legislature, also said that presidential primaries should be reformed.

But he said he has fears that a national presidential primary

"would take the candidate off the streets and put him on the TV screen," removing many chances for the candidate to "hear local voices."

"Government is already too remote," he said. The winner in such a primary, he suggested, might be the candidate who appealed most to the "basest and most emotional issues" or the one with the greatest wealth or "enormous political backing."

Limited Resources
Now, he said, "with limited resources a candidate can go into one state and do well enough to launch a national campaign, as McGovern did."

A national campaign, he said, would "make candidates closely tied to big business and big labor."

"It would replace hard issues with beautiful faces," he suggested.

He did propose, however, that the period for presidential campaigning be shortened, and he suggested spending limits could be imposed as long as they weren't so strict as to insure incumbents of re-election.

Earlier, at a news conference, he also said he would support requiring presidential and vice presidential candidates to run as teams in state primary elections.

Taft's appearance, sponsored by the student union talks and topics committee, was rescheduled from what was to have been an afternoon speech when his plane was delayed en route to Lincoln.

Funeral Set Saturday For Dr. John Lewis, 97

Services will be 10 a.m. Saturday at graveside in Lincoln Memorial Park for Dr. John G. W. Lewis, retired political science instructor at the University of Nebraska Extension Division.

Dr. Lewis, 97, died Thursday. He was born in LaSalle County, Ill., and came to Nebraska in 1882. He was a graduate of Broken Bow High School, earned a bachelor of arts degree at Grand Island College and was awarded a master's degree from the University of Nebraska in 1910 and his Ph.D. from the University of Nebraska in 1910 and his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1924.

Dr. Lewis had been superintendent of Miller Public Schools, Custer County superintendent and a teacher at Grand Island College. He spent 25 years on the faculty of Wayne State College and moved to Lincoln in 1935.

In Lincoln, Dr. Lewis supervised WPA work at NU and edited the Survey of Administration of Nebraska Counties. He retired at the age of 90 from his position as a correspondence instructor with the Extension Division.

He was the holder of the Robert Carroll Bronze Jordan Medal of Wayne Lodge No. 120 AS&AM and was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Dr. Lewis is survived by his son, John K. of St. Louis, daughter, Mrs. J. R. (Virginia) Burnham of Omaha and Mrs. Everette (Jeanette) Copes of Ainsworth; a brother, Leland of Tallahassee, Fla., four grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Architects File Lawsuit For Payment Of $59,177

A $59,177 suit was filed Thursday in Lancaster District Court by a Lincoln architectural firm against Schummel Hotels Corp., C. C. Carlson Companies Inc. and Raddison Hotels Corp. in connection with alleged failure of the hotel firms to pay for professional services rendered.

Clark and Enersen, Hamersky, Schlaebitz, Burroughs and Thomsen, Inc., allege that on June 25, 1959, they, at the request of the defendants, performed professional services for the defendants for a proposed 100-unit motor hotel addition to the Hotel Cornhusker.

The plaintiffs contend that the rendition of the professional services completed the "Design Development Phase" according to the schedule of charges of the American Institute of Architects and for such services that they are entitled to 35% of 6% of $2,006,724 — the proposed construction cost of the project — or $48,161.

They allege that although they have made demand for payment, the defendants have failed, refused and neglected to pay.

In addition to the fee, the plaintiffs claim $11,016 interest for a total of $59,177.

Astronauts Plug Space Program As Pride Of Decade

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The last spacemen to go to the moon expressed some down-to-earth optimism Thursday about the U.S. space program past and future, calling it "the one thing that allowed us to hold our heads high in the past decade" and predicting it will be "the salvation of mankind."

"The challenge of space plays a very important role for America and the future of the world," said Navy Capt. Eugene A. Cernan, commander of Apollo 17, America's last manned lunar voyage.

Cernan, with Navy Capt. Ronald E. Evans and Dr. Harrison H. (Jack) Schmitt, told newsmen in a press conference that the now-dead Apollo flights stand as "an investment in the future."

Dedicate Capsule

The astronauts, slightly morbid and jovial, were in Lincoln to dedicate the Apollo 9 space capsule which will be put on permanent display at the University of Nebraska State Museum.

The Apollo mission represents the only accomplishment in a decade of civil strife, suggested Schmitt, lunar module pilot and the only civilian ever to walk on the moon.

Cernan said he is disappointed by discontinuation of space projects in the near future, but is anxious to use his experience in meeting the challenge of Russian docking missions and Skylab projects.

Temporary Stop

Schmitt, too, said he is certain the termination of space exploration is only temporary. It would be "foolhardy," Schmitt said, to stop now and hold our established space frontiers. He warned that "a society that ceases to invest in the future is a society that ceases to grow."

Answering charges that funding U.S. space missions has robbed domestic programs, Evans explained that "only 1.3 cents of the tax dollar is spent on space" while about 45 cents of it goes to social, economic and welfare programs.

Cernan agreed, pointing out that "not one penny has been spent on the moon." Rather, he said, the money has gone to colleges and research institutions in America to develop the "technological benefits that go into our kitchen and our automobile."

"The accomplishments of a nation" are inherent in the Apollo mission, Cernan said, to which Americans can point with pride.

'Cooperation'

The balding Evans, who took a 12,000-mile walk in space while Apollo 17 returned to earth, said the greatest gain in the future "will be from that spirit of cooperation" as spacemen from other world powers explore the universe "on a peaceful basis."

Geologist Schmitt, who revelled in finding mysterious orange dust on the lunar surface, said Apollo's role and importance are "unique in history."

"We've evolved a technology," Schmitt said, which has opened the door to the universe "if we choose to live in it."

Mankind's salvation, he said, may lie in the "additional havens for human life" provided by space.

Cernan said in talking with Russian cosmonauts, they have cast aside political disagreements. "If the space program does contribute nothing else, he stated, it has helped to eliminate mutual distrust and open international lines of communication."

North Platte . . .

Oldtime Steam Train Planned

North Platte (AP) — Nebraska Midland Railroad Co. has announced plans to operate a narrow-gauge, steam engine-pulled tourist railroad near Scout's Rest Ranch, former home of "Buffalo Bill" Cody, beginning in June.

The North Platte-based corporation, headed by local truck stop operator James Conley, has purchased a steam locomotive from Black Hills Central Railroad in South Dakota, along with seven 1890s vintage cars, including a drivers' caboose, two cattle cars and four gondolas.

Four of the cars will be modified and lined with benches for about 100 passengers, to be used until the firm builds its own replicas of early 1900s passenger cars. Such cars are nearly impossible to purchase, according to H. J. Hanger, who has been developing the rail operation idea for six years. Hanger will be general manager of the line.

3-Mile Trip

Customers will be given about a three-mile round-trip ride this summer, with the track starting near Buffalo Bill's former home and going east from there.

The corporation secured approval of the State Game and Parks Commission and the Department of Economic Development to run part of the track on state-owned land.

Future plans call for extension of the line east to Cody Park, about three miles east of Scout's Rest Ranch.

The terminal for the line will be the former Union Pacific Railroad depot at Brady. The depot will be refurbished in 1900s style.

To Hire Eight

Hanger said he probably will hire about eight persons to help him run the railroad this summer. He hopes to hire two retired Union Pacific engineers to man the engine itself.

Hanger said the railroad will not be a "tourist trap." He said, "It'll be a legitimate operation" and will offer persons "A chance to experience something you just can't find anymore."

The engine and tender will be shipped by railroad flat car in a few weeks, with the other cars arriving on trucks from locations in Colorado and South Dakota. Hanger hopes to have the rail laid by May 1 with practice runs starting in mid-May and the line's opening set for early June.

Hanger said the operation will be the 20th of its kind in the nation.

Defense Questions Rights Waiving

Omaha (AP) — The question of whether juveniles are capable of waiving their rights and giving statements about alleged crimes without consultation with their parents, guardians or attorneys was raised at a pretrial hearing here.

The subject came up at a hearing involving three youths charged with first-degree murder in the death of Leonard Parkinson, 79, a downtown Brandeis store guard.

Defense attorneys Eugene O'Sullivan, Thomas Carey and Larry Corrigan are asking District Court Judge John C. Burke to rule on that point. The lawyers contend that statements given to police by the defendants are inadmissible as evidence.

Charged with the killing, which occurred last Sept. 3, are Morgan E. Johnson, 14, Larry Ebberson, 14, and Haywood Jasper Jr., 15.

The defense offered a case involving a juvenile in which the Indiana Supreme Court ruled recently that the youth must receive counsel from his parents or a proper authority before waiving his constitutional rights regarding statements to police.

To further back up their contentions, the defense asked clinical psychologist Philip McLeod to testify on a standard verbal intelligence test administered to Jasper. McLeod told the court Jasper scored in the three percentile, which means 97% of those in his age group who took the test scored higher.

The defense also contends that it is unconstitutional to let the county attorney make the decision as to whether a case involving youths should be tried in Juvenile Court or District Court.

County Atty. Donald Knowles testified that one of the major considerations is the gravity of the offense.

Birth Control Services Emphasized

Omaha (AP) — Birth-control services for welfare recipients soon will be given increased emphasis here, Douglas County Welfare Director Michael Healey said Thursday.

He said the action is being taken to comply with new federal guidelines requiring all state and county welfare departments to offer family planning services to "current, former and potential" Aid to Dependent Children recipients.

The federal government also is increasing its funding for family planning from 75% to 90%, Healey said, adding that all other social services provided by the department will continue to receive 75% funding.

Actual assistance money to welfare recipients will continue to be 50% federally funded.

Healey said the department has provided family planning services in the past, but more effort will be made so welfare recipients are aware of the services. A family planning unit of about 16 caseworkers will be organized for the purpose. They will be trained in birth-control counseling and will refer persons to medical clinics where examinations and contraceptive devices would be paid for by Medicaid.

For the first time, Healey said, welfare departments face a penalty from the government in reduced funding for other services for failure to offer family planning services.

A welfare department spokesman said it was not known what criteria the federal government will use in determining whether a welfare office is providing adequate services.

but he assumed one standard will be a decrease in illegitimate births among welfare recipients.

Healey said, however, that birth control will not be forced on anyone.

The Douglas County office expects to begin increased efforts by mid-March, Healey said, adding, however, that the department still is awaiting federal clarification of guidelines.

Omaha Power Unit Awards 6 Contracts

Omaha (AP) — At its regular monthly meeting Thursday, the Omaha Public Power District board of directors awarded six contracts totaling more than $1 million and approved four change orders for work being done at the Fort Calhoun nuclear power station.

Two contracts were awarded the O.K. Electric Co. Inc. of Omaha. The first in the amount of $288,000, for the construction of substation foundations, structures, control building and an underground duct line system associated with a new substation installation in Omaha. A 198,029 contract was awarded for the construction of manhole and duct line to accommodate underground distribution circuits in Omaha.

D. R. Anderson Constructors Inc. of Omaha was awarded a $72,440 contract for alterations to the first and second floors of OPD's Electric Building in downtown Omaha.

Two firms were awarded contracts for additions to an OPD substation at 72nd and Woolworth. A contract for $45,700 was awarded E.E.R. Power Engineering Inc. of Franklin Park, Ill., for purchase of outdoor substation structures. H. K. Porter Co. Inc. of Chicago was awarded a $33,258 contract for purchase of disconnect switches.

A contract for the purchase of electrical equipment for the new Omaha-Douglas County building complex was awarded in two parts. Central Moloney Inc. of St. Louis, Mo., was awarded a $35,960 contract for purchase of vault transformers.

Westinghouse Electric Corp. received a $23,860 contract for purchase of network protectors.

Crete Receives $142,070 Grant

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Nebr., announced Thursday a grant of $142,070 to the city of Crete, Neb., for a waste water treatment facility.

Crete had already received a grant and changes in the facility required by the Environmental Protection Agency, but inflation and other factors resulted in the contract price for the project being over the estimate upon which the grant was made.

UNO Cash Gift Will Aid Blacks

Omaha (AP) — The University of Nebraska at Omaha has received $22,000 from the Charles E. Merrill Trust to provide financial aid for administrators of black colleges who enroll in UNO's annual short course in college business management.

Spacemen Trade Photos, Awards

"The word 'impossible' does not exist any more," declared astronaut Eugene Cernan in dedicating the Apollo 9 space capsule Thursday at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The Navy captain said meeting the challenge of Apollo "has only opened the door" in building a future peace for the nation.

And he placed that new challenge squarely in the hands of about 1,000 students who attended the ceremony, which kicked off Greek Week on the UNL campus.

Awards Traded

Cernan, Navy Capt. Ronald E. Evans and Dr. Harrison H. Schmitt Apollo 17 crew members, traded a profuse number of awards with state and university officials during the dedication and earlier at a luncheon in their honor.

The astronauts presented to the people of Nebraska a plaque showing the state flag, an Apollo patch and a moon photo. Lt. Gov. Frank Marsh accepted the award.

To the UNL faculty and students and the Interfraternity Council, they gave photos of the moon and the Apollo 17 launch.

Admirals

Marsh reciprocated by making all three admirals in the Nebraska Navy. He commissioned Schmitt, the only civilian of the trio, first so that might at last outrank his Apollo partners, he said.

Although the astronauts modestly downplayed credit for their space mission's success, master of ceremonies Dave Perry called them "three extraordinary Americans."

Cernan and Schmitt were the 11th and 12th men, respectively, to walk on the moon.

Cernan called Evans, the command module pilot, "the last man not to walk on the moon."

Applauded

Despite their modesty, the astronauts were applauded by officials attending the dedication, including university Regents Robert J. Prokop and Edward Schwartzkopf, Museum Director Dr. C. B. Schultz, and Walter Behlen, whose contributions helped bring the Apollo 9 capsule to Lincoln.

The spacecraft, launched in 1966 in a suborbital test for later manned flights, is the only one donated to a university museum.

At the luncheon, the astronauts were made honorary members of Gamma Gamma by the Greek system "for outstanding service." They were also presented with "Big Red" telephones, and the Nebraska Alumni Association gave them jewelry.

Paul Amen, representing the mayor, awarded the three with a key to the city.

Mix Needed

At the dedication, geologist Schmitt, called "Dr. Rock," told students "There's a need for a much broader mix of disciplines" in future space efforts, even from the arts.

"There's no limit to who can participate in space," Schmitt said, calling the Apollo mission "a down-payment on the universe."

Evans said he is frequently asked if he was scared. He admitted apprehension, but related excitedly that going into orbit "is delightful!" and, smiling, said he recommends it for everyone.

He drew chuckles from the audience when he delicately described problems the astronauts encountered in using their makeshift space bathroom.

When asked, "How do you do it?" Evans says he replies, "Well, as you know, there are two ways."

Nebraska City (AP) — The American Meter Division of The Singer Co. will expand its Nebraska City factory to increase the manufacturing capacity of its die casting operation. The manager of the Nebraska City plant, Gary Blakeman, said an 8,500 square foot addition will be an extension to two other plant extensions. He said the new work and equipment would cost more than $50,000. The firm now employs more than 300 persons and will hire 20 more when the addition is completed, Blakeman said. The plant manufactures gas meters.

Strong State Stance Seen In Fed Cattle

Nebraska can corner one-third of the new cattle feeding industry expected to develop by 1980, predicted the chairman of the University of Nebraska Animal Science department at a conference here Thursday.

"Nebraska has the feed supply today to more than double its cattle feeding enterprise," Dr. Frank H. Baker said at the Livestock Waste Management System Design Conference for engineers. This feed supply can attract new cattle feeding operations to Nebraska.

About 7 million more feed cattle will be needed to meet consumers' demands in 1980, and Nebraska's share can be over 2 million head, according to Baker.

Expansion is in sight for the pork industry too. By 1980, Baker said, the nation will need 30% more pork. Nebraska has expanded its pork production 40% in the last decade while the eastern Corn Belt has decreased production, he pointed out.

Opium Is Seized

Tehran, Iran (AP) — A police drug squad seized more than 12 tons of opium after an hour-long gun battle with smugglers, police reported.

This means Nebraska probably can expand its pork industry more rapidly than the rest of the nation without causing overproduction, Baker said. Overproduction in 1970 caused price declines in 1971, he added, but stable growth during this decade should bring price stability.

Enlarging these livestock industries requires money, he warned. Two million additional fed cattle should double the industry's gross receipts in the next decade to $2 billion, Baker said. However, he estimated that an investment of $2 billion in cows and working capital will be needed.

Nebraska will need a cow herd of 6.7 million if over 2 million fed cattle are added to the current production of 4 million head, he said. Investment in land and irrigation development will be necessary to produce more grain, even though the state isn't using all the grain it produces now, he declared.

Feed supply for the expanded cow herd can come from development of irrigated pasture on 14 million acres in the Sandhills, Baker said. Also, residues from corn and sorghum can support 2 to 3 million cows, he estimated.

School Board Negotiators Offer 4.5% Hike

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln Board of Education negotiators Thursday offered the Lincoln Education Association bargaining team a 1973-74 compensation package which would provide teachers with an overall 4.5% increase, including both wages and fringe benefits.

Most of the increase would be in the form of wages, since the only additional fringe benefit offered was another $1 a month contribution to health insurance premiums.

The LEA team has already asked for an increase which would average 8.3% in wages, plus a number of increases or additions in fringe benefits.

Hike Of 11%
The total LEA package, according to estimates by members of the school board's negotiating team, could amount to a wage and fringe benefit hike of more than 11%.

The school board team's plan, as submitted Thursday in the second negotiating session in this year's round, was based on a salary increase of $150 per teacher, plus the amount of increase that would go to all teachers for another year of experience.

The actual dollar increase for individual teachers would vary from $150 to $570, according to a salary schedule provided by members of the board's team.

For teachers who have not yet reached the top of the pay scales for experience, the individual increases would be no less than $445.

One Benefit
Although the LEA has asked for a number of fringe benefit improvements, the only additional benefit offered by the board's negotiators Thursday was the extra $1 per month contribution toward health insurance premiums.

The school district contribution this year is $13.50 per month. The board team said it would be willing to agree to $14.50.

The LEA, on the other hand, has asked for the school district to pay the full family coverage, which is $39.70 per month this year.

The school board team apparently rejected a number of other fringe benefit requests, including doubling the amount of the death benefit and adding income protection and payment of accumulated sick leave. The board team did, however, say that it agrees that teachers who are victims of willful assault by students in the teachers' line of duty should not lose sick benefits as a result.

Insurance Asked
The LEA has asked for some kind of personal property and personal assault insurance.

Accompanying the school board proposal Thursday was a list of average teacher salaries in 10 selected districts in the state, showing that Lincoln teachers rank second in average pay.

The school board team also: —asked that no stalemate in this year's negotiations be declared unless school board members and LEA members themselves have a chance to vote on it. The effect would be to bypass both negotiating teams in the case the two couldn't reach agreement and attempt to avoid a lengthy fact-finding process.

—asked for creation of a joint task force to report by next Jan. 1 on suggestions for simplifying the salary schedules and providing for some form of incentive or performance pay.

—suggested teachers could work 188 instead of 190 contract days next year if they chose not to be paid for two staff development days.

Pianist Displays Old Romantic Style

By NELSON POTTER

Playing Thursday evening in Kimball Recital Hall, pianist Gina Bachauer conveyed to the audience a sense of total pianistic style.

She is the bearer of a powerful, old, mostly romantic European tradition of pianism. Perhaps for this reason she is better known and more widely honored in Europe than in America, which is less familiar with the stylistic tradition she has inherited.

Miss Bachauer's program opened with Mozart's Sonata in F major, K. 332. This piece was played in a smooth, legato, mostly romantic style with rather more use of pedal than contemporary audiences are used to; the first movement was performed without a repeat of the exposition, and the last movement with some unclassical variations of tempo. Nevertheless the restrained, elegant style of Mozart was well conveyed by her performance.

Miss Bachauer seemed most at home in the second piece of the evening, Schubert's great B-flat sonata, Opus Posthumous. This large, lovely, loose-jointed work, crammed full of beautiful melodies, was played tenderly, gently, lovingly, in an interpretation that was redolent with sentiment and grace. Her deliberate tempos allowed the listener to savor each melody, while yet remaining aware of the architecture of the piece, and the relation of the parts to one another.

The final piece of the evening was Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition," a piece calling for a more bravura interpretation. Though bravura might seem foreign to Miss Bachauer's style of playing, she played the piece very well. The "Bydlo" rose to a very powerful high point, the "Hut on Fowls' Legs" was played with what seemed to be real abandon and excitement, and the concluding massive "Great Gate of Kiev" was properly powerful and orchestral-sounding.

It is unfortunate that the Steinway piano had a buzzing pedal and some weak sounding treble notes, and at times seemed to be not perfectly in tune.

On the whole, Miss Bachauer's performance was exciting and compelling; it ought to add lustre and reputation to the University of Nebraska's new performing arts series, of which it is a part.

'Senior Vote' Said Underrated

The impact of the senior citizen vote was overlooked in the last election, according to Ron Jensen, director of the Nebraska Commission on Aging.

"Not in recent history has the news media devoted attention to an issue out of all proportion to its impact as it did with the highly touted 'youth vote,'" Jensen said.

For every American voter under the age of 25, there are two voters over the age of 50, he said.

Jensen said he considers the senior citizen vote a "swing vote up for grabs" that tends to move back and forth across party lines from one election to another.

Political candidates and office holders now are more sensitive to senior citizens' interests, Jensen contends.

"Five years ago when I took this job," he said, "there were very few public officials taking an active interest in the aging. Today our advice is frequently solicited...to help formulate proposals or policies to assist the elderly."

Senior citizens are watching closely for delivery on campaign statements in their behalf, Jensen said.

As evidence of the potential impact of the elderly in Nebraska, Jensen said the state ranks fifth among all states in the proportion of its voting population aged 62 and above. Currently, 22.7% of all Nebraska voters are in this age category.

Doyle Re-Elected Head Of Alcohol, Drugs Unit

Lincoln attorney John R. Doyle Thursday was re-elected president of the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs.

Doyle will head a 1973 slate of officers which included Robert Campbell and Don Nielson as vice presidents, Mary Sue Ludwick as secretary and Ross Martin as treasurer.

New members-at-large of the executive committee are Dave Henry and Rex Bevins. Seven vacancies on the board were filled with the election of Darrel McClatchey, Dr. John Gardner, Jackie Lewis, Ron Namuth, John O'Neill, Helen Weber and Mike Lawlor.

Appointed to fill a post vacated by a resignation was John Walker.

Re-elected to the board for their second three-year terms were Campbell, Phil Crowl, Roger Egan, James Geist, Eames Irvin, Dr. Jarrold Merker, Tom Osborne, Lee Schroeder and Gun Swanson.

Sertoma Clubs Host Students To Observe 'Freedom Week'

In observance of the Sertoma International Freedom Week, members of Lincoln's five Sertoma clubs lunched with student and faculty guests representing Lincoln's high schools Thursday.

Dr. Vance Rogers, president of Nebraska Wesleyan University, spoke to the group on "The Fundamentals of the Freedoms We Enjoy Today."

Hike In Price Of Cigarettes Is Mandatory

Nebraska retailers of cigarettes are required to mark up their prices by at least 8% as a result of an increase in the manufacturers' prices, according to State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters.

The increase is mandated by the Nebraska Cigarette Fair Trade Law, which sets a floor on the retail sale price of cigarettes. There is no ceiling.

The calculations provided by Peters indicated minimum retail prices ranging from 38 to 46 cents per package and from $3.77 to $4.53 per carton, depending on the manufacturer's price.

POW's Release Just In Time For Pius X Girl

For Janet Murphy of 5825 A. the release of Navy Cmdr. Raymond Volden from a Hanoi prisoner of war camp has come just in time, for the fingernail polish is wearing off her POW bracelet.

Allergic to the nickel content of the bracelet, Janet coated the ornament with polish so that it wouldn't irritate her skin. That was the only time in almost a year that the sophomore at Pius X High School has taken the bracelet off.

Janet reported that Volden, who has been in captivity since April 3, 1965, is presently on his way to the Memphis, Tenn., Naval Hospital.

She plans to send the bracelet on to the Navy commander as soon as she learns his permanent address.

That Explosion At The University Is Music

Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska is the scene of an explosion. But its shock waves are musical ones, and its sounds are drifting across the state and the region in the form of concerts and workshops that have rarely been so available to so many.

Although the kinds of performing arts activities emanating from the university are not new to either NU or the state, the numbers of them—and the quality of the performers involved—are enough of a departure to make music lovers applaud.

Symphony concerts and solo performances, musical festivals and master classes, artists-in-residence and art workshops, plays and operas are all pieces that fit into a new picture of performing arts for students and for the state.

The reasons for the increasing attention are varied. But much of the explosion in the performing arts accompanied, or at least closely followed, the arrival in Lincoln of D. B. (Woody) Varner as president of the University of Nebraska.

In his three years in Nebraska, Varner has paid close attention to the arts, an attention he displayed with similar vigor as chancellor of Oakland University in Rochester, Mich., which he left to become NU's chief executive officer.

At Oakland, he had provided much of the spark that led to establishment of the Meadow Brook Festival, the Meadow Brook Theater and the Academy of Dramatic Art, all now housed on that campus in Paula and Woody Varner Hall named for Varner and his wife.

At NU, his leadership has been most apparent in the efforts that led this year to appointment of cellist Zara Nelsova and pianist Grant Johannesen as artists-in-residence for the university and the state, and to establishment of a Lincoln-headquartered Mid-America Arts Alliance for four midwestern states.

He's also attracted the funds to appoint to his own staff a special assistant for the arts, whose job is to see that the arts the university has to offer are made available around the state.

ST. PAUL CHAMBER ORCHESTRA . . . members play in Nebraska Union.

"The major reason for the upsurge in the performing arts would be, of course, President Varner," said John Moran, acting director of the UN-Lincoln School of Music and chairman of the recently established UNL cultural affairs committee.

Interest Generated
"Almost simultaneously," noted Moran, "the University Friends of the Arts began to generate interest from others who were supposed to be doing things."

That somewhat informal organization generated enough interest to help found a performing artists series on the Lincoln campuses, and four outstanding solo performers are visiting the campus throughout this academic year.

Other results, tied to increasing interest from a number of corners, will bring to the university in the spring the first major symphony orchestra to appear on the campus in a quarter century.

The famed Guthrie Theatre from Minneapolis will appear in both Lincoln and Omaha in March, and the St. Paul (Minn.) Chamber Orchestra spent a week in and around Lincoln this fall, both performing and teaching young musicians.

One of the homegrown examples of the new attention to the arts was the early February production, in an ambitious effort, of the Nebraska-written opera, "Napoleon."

In terms of personalities, Moran gives much credit to Varner, UNL Chancellor James Zumberge and Arts and Sciences Dean Mel George for their sympathetic and encouraging stances toward the arts.

Interest Growing
But he says other pleasing signs are coming from faculty members and students generally, who are showing a growing interest in fine performances and the kinds of workshops that have accompanied the upsurge.

For Varner and others, one of the biggest helps has been the increasing federal government role in financing artistic endeavors through the National Endowment for the Arts.

The endowment has also encouraged the concept of combining performances with in-residence master classes and workshops, a concept which has also played a major role in performing arts planning at NU.

And, in Nebraska, the year's performing arts events are coming closer to the people not only through on-site performances but also through the efforts of the state educational television network, which is mounting its own ambitious effort to take arts to the state via film and tape.

Still, more remains to be done.

Nelson Potter, a UNL philosophy professor whose interest led to the formation of the University Friends of the Arts, said he believes more attention must be paid to improvement and strengthening of the university's "regular course offerings."

Courses Have Lagged
Moran seconded that, saying the university has, in terms of institutional monetary support, lagged behind similar institutions in the country.

"For unknown reasons," he said, "UNL has never had a formalized program of earmarked funds to sponsor performing arts—they've been forced to pay out of the box office."

That may be changing too, however.

Dean George said he's interested in seeking additional funds for performing arts on the campus, and both the student affairs office and the student union have been helpful in providing added support for the arts.

Interest is also building on the campus for a performing arts center large enough to house adequately a symphony or ballet.

Investigation of the possibility is one of the tasks of the cultural affairs committee headed by Moran.

All the university-centered activity has, among other things, also made some other art enthusiasts in the community and around the state a bit nervous.

Some feared that the university might be attempting to dominate the arts.

But Potter, who is president this year of the Lincoln Friends of Chamber Music, said the increased attention on the arts has been welcome.

He noted the chamber music concerts were sold out this year, and he added that the chamber group was the one which probably would've "felt the competition most strongly."

"My feeling, from the point of view of the Friends of Chamber Music, and also the Community Arts Council, is a real sense of increased activity, most centering at the university."

"So far, everyone is benefiting."

Varner's Personal Interest Has Boosted UN-L Attention To Arts

The personal interest of University of Nebraska President D.B. Varner has done much to boost attention to the arts at NU.

At the same time, however, Varner believes universities are in unique positions to promote artistic enterprises.

"I've become convinced the universities of America represent the strongest ally of the arts and provide perhaps the most effective base for expansion of artistic concerns," he says.

Woody Varner's record, both from a personal standpoint and as a university administrator, has been an impressive one when measured against an artistic standard.

He began promoting the arts when he came to Nebraska three years ago, and his efforts bore fruit in 1972 with two major achievements.

One was the announcement that two internationally renowned artists — Grant Johannesen and Zara Nelsova — would become attached to the university part-time as artists-in-residence.

And the other was the formation of a Mid-America Alliance for the Arts, a Varner dream-child that captured the imagination of the National Endowment for the Arts and arts organizations and individuals in four midwestern states.

Headquarters Here

The alliance is headquartered in Lincoln from which a small staff is building a regional arts program unique in American life.

Both the appointment of the resident artists and the formation of the regional alliance were tributes to the persuasiveness and hard-driving commitment to the arts that Varner developed at Rochester, Minn., where he was chancellor of Oakland University.

"I shall not be content until this university moves to a central role in making available the best of the arts to the communities of this state."

Varner says now that it was his arrival at Oakland more than 10 years ago which provided the first real opportunity for involvement in the arts.

In the talks that led to establishment of the new university, he said, arts became part of a "strategy decision on what the university should be."

"I became very active in helping to achieve the institutional goal," he added.

One of the first achievements was the Meadow Brook Festival, named for the wooded estate on which Oakland University sits.

Symphony, Ballet

The festival attracted the Detroit Symphony for a series of summer concerts and performances by the American Ballet Theatre company and the New York Philharmonic.

Oakland paid tribute to the Varner's interest in the arts when, in 1971, it named a new performing arts center for the former chancellor and his wife.

His involvement at Oakland, said Varner, "gave me a thorough schooling in some aspects of the arts." But he emphasized the word "some," and he added, "I'm always embarrassed by my limited understanding."

With a bit of a smile, Varner said, "My own personal interest undoubtedly springs from a deprived boyhood."

But he added, with an air of seriousness, that his small Texas hometown knew art as a "guitar and a washboard," and he said a career that took him from Texas A&M to the military and then on to agricultural economics and agricultural extension

"does not suggest a very heavy orientation in the arts."

'Crucial Dimension

Now, he said, he believes art "represents a dimension of life which is crucial and essential."

"In the talk about the quality of life," he added, "the arts form an integral part."

Varner said universities "have as a part of their inherent commitment to be concerned with the larger aspects of the quality of life."

They also have a "geographical base which makes them effective vehicles for advancing the arts" and can provide "a stable base for the arts from an ongoing institution."

At the same time, he said, "to fulfill their commitment to society, universities have an obligation to provide this service to the community at-large and particularly to our student community."

'Like To Be Partner

Admitting he's observed some concern that the university may overshadow other ongoing arts programs in Lincoln and other parts of the state, Varner said he'd "like the university to be a partner with other arts groups, or with others interested in the arts, to advance the total cause."

"I hope the university can serve as a source of added strength in the total effort," he said.

"I have been told there has not been a major symphony on this campus in 25 years. If that is true, it must establish some kind of record unequalled for a major university."

"This state has a long tradition in the arts," he said, "and real strength in the visual arts."

VARNER . . . arts essential.

"There are some real fine artistic organizations at the community level," he noted. "What I am saying is I don't think the university has done as much as it should."

To Give Ag Functions Separate Chancellor:

Ag Council Recommends Amending LB149

By DOMINICK COSTELLO

Farm Editor

After more than four hours of heated discussion the Nebraska Agricultural Council approved an amended version of LB149 which would establish an Agricultural Center at the University of Nebraska.

The Nebraska Agricultural Council is formed of representatives of most of the state's farm organizations.

The amendment to LB149 proposed by the council reads: "The concept of an Agriculture Center shall be limited to the administration of University affairs relating to agricultural teaching, research and extension.

The creation of a separate corporation and bylaws, separate facilities and staff is not intended.

The chancellor of the University of Nebraska at Lincoln shall cooperate in the coordination of University government relating to academic affairs, student affairs, business and finance buildings and grounds and other mutual concerns needed to avoid unnecessary duplication and to provide a high quality educational program for all students under their direction.

The council's amendment accompanied by a plan showing a proposed system of government for the University, offered a suggestion of how the University would be operated under the Agricultural Center concept.

The council specifically wants a leader, whatever his title is, who has a direct line to the board of regents.

The council proposal would provide for chancellors for both the proposed agricultural center and for the city campus in Lincoln. This would in effect upgrade both Lincoln campuses to a level comparable to the UNO campus and the Medical Center at Omaha.

Presumably the council plan would result in Chancellor Zumberge becoming vice president of the University system directly under President Varner.

Vice Chancellor Virginia Trotter presumably would move up to become Chancellor of the University of Nebraska at Lincoln and the Dean of the College of Agriculture would presumably move up to become the Chancellor of the Agricultural Center.

Under the plan proposed by the council the chancellors of UNO, the Medical Center, UNL, and the Agricultural Center would each prepare and present their individual budgets to the President of the University and to the board of regents.

They would also be expected to defend their budgets before the regents, the governor and the Legislative Appropriations Committee.

Since each chancellor would be familiar with the specific problems of his or her own segment of the University council members felt they could make the needs of that segment more apparent to those officials who ultimately approve or disapprove funding requests for the University.

ERA 'Would Erode Women's Rights'

By the Associated Press

Sufficient safeguards already exist to ban discrimination against women without the equal rights amendment (ERA), the nation's leading opponent of the proposed constitutional amendment said Thursday.

Instead enactment of ERA into law would only serve to erode rights and privileges already enjoyed by women, said Phyllis Schlafly of Alton, Ill., the national chairman of "Stop ERA."

For example, one of those rights which would be stricken by ERA is "the right to have husband financially support women," Mrs. Schlafly told a news conference.

Meets Senators

Mrs. Schlafly was in Lincoln for a breakfast meeting with Nebraska state legislators, who have been asked to repeal the state's 1972 ratification of ERA. A public hearing on the ratification repeal resolution is scheduled next week.

ERA would make women subject to the draft, she said. Even though the current draft has ended, she said, "there has been a draft for 33 years and the politicians have been promising peace." She predicted another war would bring "social upheaval" because of ERA's effect on the military.

'Present Laws Adequate'

Federal anti-discrimination and equal employment laws are adequate to protect women, she contended. She cited one example of a recent order by the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission directing the Bell Telephone Co. to provide better jobs for its women.

Although she admitted instances do exist of such discrimination, she said a lack of women in professional occupations such as medicine and law means only that women "don't want to pay the price" of hard work and long hours.

Crime Fighting Aid Presented To State

Nebraska's fiscal year 1973 crime fighting award of $3,300,000 from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) was presented Thursday to Gov. J. James Exon and Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer, chairman of the State Crime Commission.

William H. Smith, regional administrator of LEAA from Kansas City, made the personal presentation. Nebraska was the first of four states in this region to receive its action grant award. This represents a 16% increase over the 1972 action grant award of $3,300,000. On Nov. 6, 1972, Nebraska received an advance on its 1973 action grant of $1,546,000.

Smith also presented Exon and Meyer with the final audit report on the State Crime Commission. The audit was undertaken one year ago by the LEAA audit office in Denver, Colo.

Smith said that LEAA feels Nebraska has made a major effort in the last year implementing corrective actions for all deficiencies revealed in the report.

Price For Grade A Milk In January $6.31 Per Cwt.

Omaha (UPI) — The Department of Agriculture said Thursday the minimum uniform price to Grade A milk producers shipping to handlers in Zone 1 of the Nebraska-Western Iowa federal order market in January was $6.31 per hundredweight.

This was for milk containing 3.5% butterfat, free on board market and before authorized deductions.

The minimum price for Zone 2 was $6.21 and for Zone 3 $6.46.

The January uniform prices were eight cents above December prices and 41 cents above the uniform prices for January of last year. The minimum Class I price to handlers for milk testing 3.5 percent was $6.92 for Zone 1, $6.82 for Zone 2 and $7.07 for Zone 3. The Class II price was $5.58 and the Class III price $5.43.

Producers in the marketing area delivered 81.6 million pounds of approved milk during January with a gross value of $5.4 million. Average daily producer milk deliveries during the month were 3% above December but 1.5% below January of last year.

There were 1,739 producers delivering to the market during January, 72 down from December.

Great Plains Insurance Denies Money Trouble

Omaha (AP) — The Great Plains Insurance Co. Inc. of Omaha has filed an answer in district court denying allegations by the Nebraska Department of Insurance that it is in financial trouble.

In its answer, the company said "It now is and at all times has been solvent."

Last month, State Insurance Director James M. Jackson filed an application for a hearing at which Great Plains was to show cause why the state should not take over operation of the company.

The Insurance Department suit claimed Great Plains was financially "impaired because its liabilities exceed its assets available as resources."

The company has failed to maintain the minimum amount of capital stock or stated capital as required by law, according to the suit.

In its answer, the company

Ruskin Church Will Burn Up Paid Mortgage

Ruskin — A mortgage burning ceremony here Sunday will mark the end of indebtedness for Bethany Lutheran Church on its new church structure.

The Rev. Albert Rasmussen of Minneapolis, Minn., former pastor here, will be the guest speaker for the day's activities.

Burning of the cancelled note will take place at a 2 p.m. special ceremony. A noon basket dinner will follow 10:30 a.m. worship services.

Organized by Danish settlers in 1893, the original Bethany Church was located three miles south of Ruskin. Under the leadership of the Rev. Mr. Rasmussen, the congregation decided in 1963 to relocate and build a new church at the north edge of Ruskin. The new $90,000 church building was dedicated in 1964.

The Rev. Edward Hiller has served the congregation since 1965.

La Montia Gets Welfare Dept. Assistant's Job

Michael D. La Montia, former state institutions director, has been appointed administrative assistant in the Department of Public Welfare.

State Welfare Director Lawrence Graham announced the appointment of La Montia to succeed Dave L. Prokesh, who recently was named chief of the welfare department's personnel and training division.

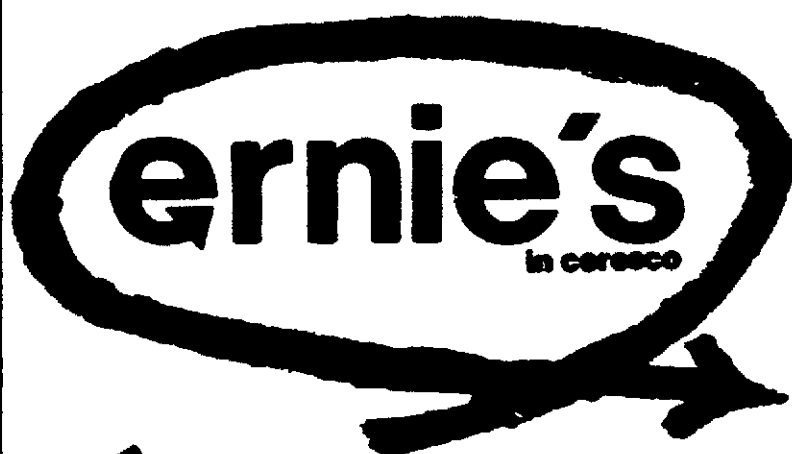

La Montia served as institutions director from January of 1971 until his resignation several months ago for health reasons. He is a retired Air Force career officer who also has been administrator for hospitals in Iowa and Arkansas and was supervisor of two Omaha nursing care centers.

Loss Reported By Railroad

Chicago (AP) — The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Co. reported a 1972 net loss of $5,855,000 or $2 a share compared with $6,415,000 or $2.20 a share in 1971.

Total railway operating revenues were $305,290,000 for 1972 compared with $291,808,000 a year ago.

The company announced that because of lack of earnings in 1972 it will not pay interest in 1973 on its 40-year 4 1/2% income debentures or make deposits to the sinking fund for first mortgage bonds.

'No Progress' In Square D Strike

After a two-day negotiating session, "no progress" was made in a second attempt to end the strike against the Square D Co. in Lincoln by about 400 electrical union members, according to Jeff Ditzler, union chairman.

The strike entered its 23rd day Friday.

Ditzler said Thursday night that the second round of talks Wednesday extended late into the night and resumed Thursday. But he reported that any possible settlement was stalled because management remains "very adamant" about its position.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 1536 presented "two compromising proposals," Ditzler said, "but they (management) did not move off their stand at all."

Plant manager Tom Brown refused Thursday night to comment on the latest negotiations.

The first negotiating session Feb. 5 also resulted in no progress, Ditzler told The Star earlier.

He said no date has been set for the next round of talks, which will be scheduled by Ed Riese of Omaha, the federal mediator supervising the dispute.

At issue are higher wages and revised fringe benefits for employees at the Square D plant in the South Industrial Park. The strike has affected about 500-600 production workers who manufacture electrical circuit breakers for international distribution and sale.

Court Hikes Harrisburg Teacher Pay

The State Court of Industrial Relations Thursday ordered the Harrisburg School District to pay its teachers a base salary of $6,700 a year.

The pay order also included 3% index increases for experience and 4% salary increases for each nine hours of additional college credit.

The order results from a suit filed by the Banner County Education Association against the school district.

The new pay schedule is to apply to this year's contracts. The 1971-72 contracts called for a $6,600 base with the same increases for longevity and education.

Scout Speech Contest Winner Honored

Patrick Curran, second from left, an Eagle Scout from Greeley, Thursday was presented with a specially-bound edition of the Boy Scout manual in a ceremony in the governor's mansion. Curran, a freshman majoring in pre-law at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, recently won the Boy Scout annual statewide speech contest. Taking part in the presentation were, from left, Jack D. Armstrong, Boy Scout area director from Kansas City, Gov. J. James Exon, and Miles Skultety, director of the speech contest. Following the presentation, Curran and Boy Scout officials had lunch with the governor and presented him with the annual Boy Scout Report. Officials said the Boy Scout organization is continuing its growth. Curran also presented the speech he made during the contest (Star Photo.)

Army Engineers Nix Big Blue Dams

Omaha (AP) — The Army Corps of Engineers Thursday reported that improvement projects for flood control in the Nebraska-Kansas Big Blue River basin are not currently warranted.

The report said that "since about 90% of the basin flood

New York—American output of plastic pipes and fittings totaled 968.2 million pounds in 1971, a 38% increase over 1970. In the first quarter of 1972, plastic-pipe production was up 75% over the same 1971 period and plastic-pipe fittings were up 25%.

plain is devoted to crop production, the average annual damages per mile are insufficient to support specific flood control improvements.

"Multipurpose facilities providing storage capacity for flood control, irrigation and recreation were considered, but the potential benefits were insufficient to justify project recommendations," the report said.

"Since basin improvements were economically infeasible," the report said, "local flood control projects were studied for Beatrice, York, DeWitt, and Crete, Neb., and Marysville, Kan., where the most severe flood damage occurs."

The report said such projects were not economically justified.

J. Bourne Files For Council

James N. Bourne of 2101 So. 59th became the fourth Lincolnite Thursday to file for the City Council primary race.

Bourne, general manager of Executive Care Free Vacations, Ltd., paid the $10 filing fee in the City Treasurer's Office.

Bourne said he favored district election of all Lincoln council members, as proposed by an amended LB448.

"I don't think certain areas of the city are being adequately represented," he said.

In addition, Bourne said he favored expanding the present seven-member council to a larger number "to give everyone representation."

Bourne rapped the present council's zoning policies, saying that more consideration should be given to zoning decisions.

He also was critical of the city's street repair program.

"What we're getting is a very poor patch job," he said, "instead of a repair job."

Bourne is a member of the Optimist Club and active in Boy Scouts. He is married and has three children.

Other candidates for City Council include Robert P. Muggy, John V. King and Jack Hunter.

The filing deadline for the April 3rd primary is March 14th. The general election will be May 1st.

Glebe Admits Draft Conviction

Lincoln real estate owner Otis Glebe admitted under oath in Lancaster County Court Thursday that he had been convicted of a felony in connection with an alleged draft problem.

Glebe, who was found guilty and fined $40 following trial Thursday on a disturbing the peace charge, made the admission in response to cross-examination by Chief Deputy County Attorney Ronald Lahners.

Glebe had refused last year to answer an accusation that he was the same person who served time in a federal prison for draft evasion during World War II when his eligibility as a candidate for the U.S. Senate was challenged.

He contended that his name was "Otis Glebe" and not Otis Orrick Glebe, who spent time in Leavenworth Federal Prison on the draft evasion charge.

Secretary of State Allen Beermann held last March that Glebe was the same Otis Orrick Glebe who was sentenced to the prison term; however, he ruled that the objections to his candidacy failed to state grounds which would disqualify him, under provisions of the constitution.

The U.S. Constitution states that the only qualifications for a U.S. Senator are that he be more than 30 years of age, a U.S. citizen for nine years and a resident of the state he desires to represent. Beermann noted in declaring that Glebe satisfied those requirements.

Lahners asked Glebe if he had ever been convicted of a felony, to which Glebe responded that he had.

He also answered in the affirmative when his attorney, John McArthur, on re-direct examination, asked if the felony on which he had been convicted was in connection with the draft.

Former Star, Tim Holt, Dies

Shawnee, Okla. (AP) — Former movie star Tim Holt, 54, of Harrah, Okla., died Thursday in the Shawnee, Okla., Medical Center Clinic.

Holt, a popular star in western movies before and after World War II, was a rancher and sales manager of Oklahoma City radio station KEBC-FM before his death.

He is survived by his widow, Birdie, and three teenage children.

THERE'S NEWS AROUND TOWN

Friday, Feb. 16, would be a going and coming morning if, that is, we could tell everything we know. There seems to be considerable of the going planned for the future, but not until it turns into a coming — a homecoming — will be able to mention it.

All is not lost, though, since we do have news of some winter travelers who have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cox are the homecomers we have in mind. They have returned to Lincoln from the west coast — Los Angeles — and the southwest — Scottsdale, Ariz.

There was a very special incentive for the trip west for Mr. and Mrs. Cox. They not only wanted a visit with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Cox, Jr., they also wanted to extend personal greetings to their brand new granddaughter who arrived in mid-January, and to re-acquaint their older granddaughter with her grandparents. From Los Angeles Mr. and Mrs. Cox went to Scottsdale where they were the guests of another son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Jerry Cox, and their two children.

We have another 'coming' to mention but this time the news concerns a guest, Meyers (Bud) Cather of New Canaan, Conn. Mr. Cather stopped off in Lincoln en route east from the west, for a brief visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Cather, and other members of his family.

Mr. Cather came to Lincoln, from Los Angeles where he, Mrs. Cather and their daughter, Cindy, had gone to attend the graduation from the Art Center School of Design, of their daughter and sister, Miss Paula Cather.

Because Miss Cindy Cather had to return to school immediately following her sister's graduation, she and Mrs. Cather went directly from Los Angeles to New Canaan and could not stop in Lincoln.

And there is other interesting news this morning. We learned that Mrs. Ann Magee is about to have a change of address. On March 1, or thereabouts, she will be moving from 4703 Canterbury Lane to her recently purchased new home on West Lakeshore Drive.

Moving day is a bit closer at hand for Miss Mariel Jones. On Feb. 23, she will change her address from 1345 So. 18th St., to 1711 D St. Apt. 6.

CYNTHIA JOHNSON

The latter part of the month of February will be a busy time for theater-goers — both children and adults — in Lincoln. Beginning on Friday, Feb. 23, the dramatics department at Nebraska Wesleyan University will present a production of the musical comedy spoof, "Of Thee I Sing."

First staged in 1931, the play, which deals with the convention, campaign and election of a fictional President of the United States, was the first musical comedy production to win a Pulitzer Prize.

The plot revolves around the efforts of a party committee to win the White House with a ticket comprised of a bachelor, Wintergreen, and his nondescript vice-presidential runningmate, Throttlebottom. Deciding that the nation can be united behind the concept of "love," the committee sponsors a contest for the purpose of selecting a wife for Wintergreen.

However, the presidential nominee causes an uproar when he decides to wed his secretary instead of the young lady who wins the contest, and an hilarious spoof of the American political process ensues.

The Wesleyan production of the play, which was written by Kaufman, Ryskind, Gershwin and Gershwins, will be presented at 8 p.m. on Feb. 23 and 24, and March 3; and at 2 p.m. Feb. 25 and March 4.

Young and old alike will enjoy the next Children's Theatre production at the Lincoln Community Playhouse — "Aesop's Fables," which will be on stage at the Playhouse this weekend. Loosely based on the well-known collection of fables, the production is similar to the "Laugh-In" television show in its staging technique.

The play's author, Ed Graczyk, has undertaken to revise many of the familiar old stories, drawing new and different morals from them. The continual action of the play takes place against the background of rock music, and its comic lines, designed to parody the old fables, make it appealing to individuals of all ages.

The curtain will rise at 4:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 16, at 10:30 a.m., 2:30 p.m., and 7:30 p.m. on the 17th, and at 2:30 p.m. on Feb. 18. Reservations may be made by telephoning the Playhouse, 489-9608.

THE JULLIARD QUINTET ... one of the most renowned groups of chamber players in the world, will be featured in concert in the Sheldon Art Gallery auditorium on Saturday evening, Feb. 24. Sponsored by the Lincoln Friends of Chamber Music, the 8 p.m. program will include works by Arriaga, Charles Ives, and Ravel.

THE PLAINSMAN HONORS MUSIC FESTIVAL ... which will attract some 150 high school musicians from over 50 schools in Iowa and Nebraska, will be held on Saturday, Feb. 17, at Nebraska Wesleyan University. Following a day of rehearsals, the students will present a band and choir concert at 7:30 p.m. in O'Donnell Auditorium. John Lauber, director of choirs at NWU, will direct the Honors Festival choir, and the band will be under the direction of John Berigan. A 7 p.m. organ concert to be presented by Dr. Charles Tritt, chairman of the NWU department of Music, will precede the students' program.

MISS JANET LEE

Of interest to Lincoln this morning is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald K. Lee of the engagement of their daughter, Janet, to Gerald Eugene Nixon, son of Mrs. Eugene E. Nixon of York, and the late Mr. Nixon.

The wedding will take place on Friday, June 22.

Miss Lee will be graduated in May from York College where she is majoring in liberal arts, and where she is a member of Delta Chi Alpha sorority.

Mr. Nixon is a graduate of York College where he now is the assistant business manager.

Coed Is Bride-Elect

Announcement is made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. McGill of Wisner, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Collette, to Duane Joel Gabriel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Gabriel of Osceola.

Saturday, May 26, is named as the wedding date, and the ceremony will be solemnized in Wisner.

Miss McGill is a sophomore at the University of Nebraska where she is majoring in elementary education.

Mr. Gabriel is a junior in the University of Nebraska College of Business Administration where he is majoring in accounting.

BRIDGE

test your bidding

B. Jay Becker

Partner deals and bids One Club. What would you respond with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠ A7 ♥ KQ93 ♦ KJ5 ♣ 872
2. ♠ A532 ♥ KQ987 ♦ A4 ♣ —
3. ♠ KQ6 ♥ A9 ♦ KQ7 ♣ Q953
4. ♠ AKQJ9 ♥ — ♦ J852 ♣ A763
5. ♠ QJ92 ♥ Q985 ♦ J ♣ Q854

1. One heart. It is tempting to bid two notrump (forcing), but this would violate a cardinal principle, namely, that the first step in constructive bidding is to explore the possibility of a major suit fit.

It is certainly possible for partner to have four hearts and find it inconvenient to bid them over two notrump, and you might never locate the heart fit. Responding with a heart does not preclude the possibility of winding up in notrump, but responding with two notrump may forever lose the chance of finding a 4-4 heart fit.

2. One spade. To respond one spade, instead of two, may seem a huge underbid, but that is the right response opposite a club bid by partner. Had partner opened with a diamond instead of a club, a jump-shift to two spades would be entirely in order. The hand is worth much more, for both game and slam purposes, when partner bids a diamond.

3. Three notrump. This shows 16 or 17 points, notrump distribution (nearly always 4-3-3), and strength in the three unbid suits. Three notrump is by no means a signoff bid; on the contrary, it suggests a slam if partner has significantly more than a minimum opening bid.

4. Two spades. With a self-sufficient suit and a fit in partner's clubs, it is best to alert partner at once to the possibility of a slam by jump-shifting to two spades — even though there are only 15 high-card points. Over an opening heart bid you would respond only one spade, following the general principle of discounting your values when a misfit exists and adding to your values when a fit is known to exist.

5. One heart. You have the right values for a raise to two clubs — showing 6 to 9 points and at least four clubs — but it is nevertheless best to inaugurate the search for a major suit fit.

You bid hearts, rather than spades, in order to achieve the maximum chance of finding a 4-4 major fit. If you were to respond one spade, you might never find the heart fit if it existed. By naming hearts first, you leave room for partner to locate either major suit fit in the one level.

ABBY

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What's all this fuss about how often a person should take a bath? My grampa lived to be 98 years old. He was big and strong and was never sick a day in his life. He bathed only once a year, and that was done in a dam near our farm. Folks used to come from miles around just to watch Grampa take his yearly bath.

AQUASCUTUM, TEX.

DEAR TEX: Good for Grampa. I'll bet nobody needed directions on how to find him.

DEAR ABBY: You're a dirty old female chauvinist! Your advice on bathing reflects that state of your mind.

What is natural is by no means "dirty" unless the mind is inclined that way. Cleanliness is indeed next to Godliness, but that same body is also the temple of the spirit of that god which dwells in man and womankind. I doubt if that god would dwell in an "unclean" temple.

You belong in India, where your views would allow you to label women "unclean" — and "untouchable." Go soak your!

(All of the HERALD-MAIL, HAGERSTOWN, MD.)

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to your reader who suggested that bathing regularly was tantamount to effete snobism and totally unnecessary. It may be I am particularly susceptible to detecting this distinction, but I think I am not alone.

As physical recreation I regularly swim a mile in the campus pool during my lunch hour and I find it surprisingly easy to distinguish who has and who has not showered before entering the pool and is swimming alongside me. There are many in the latter group who are prominent, important, and respected elder colleagues who would be the first to insist that all long-haired youths "smell bad" — not realizing that they smell far worse.

For what it is worth, I have found this an infallible way to discover who is and who is not nice to be near, the lambs or the old goats, one could say.

LOVES TO SWIM IN SANTA BARBARA
DEAR ABBY: I vote for the lambs.

DEAR ABBY: You doll! Your statement, "A man should bathe once a day, and a woman can't bathe often enough" said it all. We are a group of men who must work in close quarters with some women who do not believe in bathing. We clipped that column and placed it on the desks of the offending females, and believe it or not, things are a lot better around here now. No names please. Just sign this.

"WORKING IN CLOSE QUARTERS" IN HIGHLAND PARK, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: Like all other human beings, you are entitled to your opinion. However, I think there must be some underlying motive in your statement that "women can't bathe often enough."

Are you a secret agent for Proctor and Gamble? Or are you just wierd?

DEAR GERTIE: Neither. I just have a love affair going with soap. And that's no lie!

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Chit Chat with Roxi

Teenagers have problems as do all people, and whether that teenager is a girl or a boy makes no difference in the matter of worrisome questions. Talk your problems over with Roxi — Write to her in care of The Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Neb.

Dear Roxi:

This boy I know who likes me just doesn't ask me out. What am I doing wrong? I talk to him and he seems to like it, and pays attention to me, but that's it. Am I being too forward or what? I want him to like me and ask me out.

A. You may be scaring him off. He needs room, lots of it and he doesn't like being pressured into anything by anyone. The best thing to do is remain friendly and let him make the moves. If he doesn't do something right away, don't be surprised, instead be patient. I know that word sounds like eternity, but it really isn't and you'll be surprised what can develop if both sides take their time and don't rush.

Dear Roxi:

This guy I like has a very bad habit. He won't admit he is wrong or say I'm sorry. He acts like that is beneath him. Is there some way to get the message to him, so he can get over this terrible habit?

A. No, not really. That is something he must find out for himself. People who won't admit they're wrong or say I'm sorry are normally small in stature.

Dear Roxi:

I have tried everything to get over my shyness, but nothing works. I am really getting desperate. So what can I do to get over this nerve racking problem?

A. The only way to overcome shyness is meet it face to face, don't avoid it. The longer you procrastinate, the harder it gets. Push yourself into things you normally wouldn't get involved in, and get to know your fellow human being better. Either you tackle it now, or never.

1000. This is the quality of silver we also call coin silver. Some 19th-century American pieces are marked "coin," "standard" or "premium" and they all mean the same. It is rare to find the mark "900."

800 means 800 parts of silver out of 1000. This mark is often found on Russian and European pieces of the 19th and 20th centuries.

The standard for the silver content of silverware seems to depend partly on the custom of the country. In America, since about 1860, the 925 or sterling quality has been the best. In England, there is this quality plus a higher silver content metal using 9584 parts of silver out of 10,000. 100 per cent pure silver would be too soft.

Q. What is bell metal?

A. It is a copper and bronze alloy that is often used to make bells. It has a clear tone when struck. It was also used in making mortars, measures and households utensils.

Whiskey was kept in this "Summer and Winter" flask about 1850. Decorative embossing is often found on early whiskey bottles.

(Collection of Greenfield Village and the Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn, Mich.)

It was the whiskey flask that kept the 19th-century American glass factory working. The glass houses made household bowls, tablewares, decanters, and even window glass, but it was the large demand for the utilitarian whiskey bottle that helped pay the bills. The flask was made in quantities by almost every factory.

Many kinds of flasks were made. The historic flasks had patriotic motifs. Pictures of military heroes, politicians, symbols, and emblems were embossed on the flask. Another group, the pictorial flask, had decorative motifs such as the cornucopia, scrolls or trees.

One famous pictorial flask was called "Summer and Winter." "Summer" pictured a leafy tree with a bird perched on the branches at the right. On the reverse side was a large bare tree with the bird perched on a branch at the left.

The name "Summer and Winter" was also embossed at the top of the flask. This pint-size flask was made in black, olive, aquamarine, yellow, and yellow-green. No one has ever discovered where it was made. All that is still known is that it is a United States bottle that was made about 1850.

Bottle collectors are now saving commercial packaging bottles that held cologne or food. Those who scoff should remember that the famous and treasured bottles of the past century were originally nothing more glamorous than whiskey bottles.

Q. What is the difference between silver pieces marked 925, 900, and 800?

A. 925 means 925 parts out of 1000 are silver. This is standard for sterling silver in many countries. The word sterling or the hallmark of the lion rampant of England means the same thing.

900 is 900 parts of silver out of

on a tour of the shops

One is constantly amazed at the ingenuity of the fashion merchandisers who manage to come up with exciting trends for future seasons—At least we found that to be the case on our tour of the shops this week. We not only found delightfully exciting new trends in the world of costume jewelry, but there also are wonderful new fabrics and patterns for springwear, as well as new trends for Lincoln shoppers — and that trend is in the form of a women's clothing shop which is new to the city.

AT HOVLAND-SWANSON

From all indications, costume jewelry for spring and summer will be sophisticated and fun, with the creative aspect of the accessorizing coming in the form of combining the exciting colors, textures, and shapes. The look of the 30's is evidenced throughout the line of new jewelry—there are elasticized bead bracelets, bangle bracelets, and all shapes and sizes of bead necklaces.

BEADS, BEADS, and MORE BEADS is the word for spring and summer jewelry. At Hovland-Swanson's, we learned that beads will be seen in all necklace lengths and shapes — graduated, matinee length, chunky — and all colors — pastels, brights, and bright whites, to name just a few.

FOR FILLING IN THE collars of the returning shirt-dresses, we recommend the chunk necklaces which are just a bit longer than chokers — and the beads are enlarged for that extra special emphasis.

The Natural Look also is prevalent in the new jewelry which features woods, horns, and bones — and these combinations are especially recommended for accessorizing the dresses and sportswear found in the natural tones.

FOR THOSE LOOKING AHEAD to the summer months, we have a terrific hint concerning the 'in' accessories — and that clue centers on bright shades, bright whites and the two-toned spectator look which this year will feature combinations of white and navy, white and red, and white and brown.

The white-white not only is prevalent in the bead designs, but the necklaces also feature leaf, shell, and bamboo shapes.

By the way, bangle bracelets also will be seen in abundance — and in combinations of colors and shapes. And tortoise also is employed in the spring and summer accessories, particularly in the bracelets and the chunk necklaces.

THE TRAPEZE is the name applied to one of the most exciting innovations in necklaces. This style is particularly intended for 'filling in' the shirt-dress collars — and it features one large central bead on the strand, and that oversized bead is surrounded by a series of smaller ones. The trapeze is especially effective with a polka dot motif — and polka dots also are predicted to be popular in the coming seasons. The polka dot effect is employed in a purple and white bead, for example, which is the focal point of the trapeze which is completed by a strand of white-white beads.

Of course, we already mentioned the horn and bone emphasis in the costume jewelry — but we can't fail to mention that those textures will fit in with the other forms of costume jewelry, but will help to add a more elegant and sophisticated appeal — and the bone and horn beads also are featured in the chunk and matinee lengths.

All in all, the jewelry scene is fascinating — with the beads, the spectator look, the natural materials, and the white-whites the pastels, and the exciting bright colors.

AT J. BRAGG'S

A plush new dress shop, J. Bragg's, has just opened in the Gallery Mall of Gateway Shopping Center. J. Bragg's caters to three groups of ladies — the sophisticated junior, the young contemporary and the mature woman; and the quiet and uncluttered shop creates an ideal shopping atmosphere.

ENSEMBLE IN BLACK AND WHITE: One smart looking coordinate outfit that we particularly liked features two styles of slacks in black with a small diamond print in white. The pants which are designed with cuffs display the diamond print alternating with a series of narrow, white stripes.

The matching skirts are fashioned with box pleats in solid black or white, and there are a variety of tops from which to choose. For example, some are either black or white and sleeveless with turtle necks, while others repeat the diamond design of the slacks and feature a collar above a deep V-neckline and a narrow, white belt at the waist.

One of the jackets shown also is constructed of the diamond print, polyester fabric. The collar and hem of the jacket are edged by a white trim which is repeated on the two flap pockets and the cuffs of the long sleeves.

DESIGNS BY LILLIE PURLITZER: The bright and versatile designs by Lillie Puritizer, which are sold at J. Bragg's, are ideal for spring and summer activities.

This line of clothing includes, blouses, long dresses and skirts, golf skirts and street-length dresses, which can be worn for special occasions, as well as for strolls along the beach. An outstanding feature of these items are the bright floral prints in colors such as shades of yellow, green and orange or blue, pink, green and white.

One long dress, styled in the A-line design, is fashioned with a high, round neckline and the bodice is accented by an inset of braided cotton, which is repeated in a vertical panel on the long, loose sleeves and also creates an eight inch border at the hemline.

WRAP-AROUND INNOVATION: The latest innovation in long skirts is the reversible wrap-around, which creates two skirts in one. The one side is a solid yellow with a black trim around the edges, while the opposite side is splashed with large abstract flowers in white or bright yellow on a black and white background of small, geometric checks.

Among the other items sold at J. Bragg's are a variety of handbags, golf clothes, lingerie and loungewear, and several styles of smocks and blazers for the young ladies.

AT JEANNE'S FASHION FABRICS

Spring is quickly approaching, so now is the time to start preparing your spring and summer wardrobe. If you like to sew your own clothes or are thinking about learning, may we suggest that you stop at Jeanne's Fashion Fabrics, where they display a large selection of materials for every need.

SEERSUCKER: We recently have witnessed the return of seersucker in blazers, battle jackets and slacks, and Jeanne's has an unlimited variety of seersucker plaids.

It is no wonder that seersucker plaid is so popular today, since such bright and attractive color combinations are available. Some fabrics feature blue, lavender, violet, yellow, green and white, while another design displays pastel shades of pink, blue, yellow and green.

A unique idea in seersucker is the use of large gingham checks, which can be seen at Jeanne's in red and blue. Other seersucker designs include a series of narrow stripes in pink, black, white, gold and blue which are alternated with wider stripes of blue, yellow and white. Still another seersucker is patterned with multicolored houses, barns, churches and trees on a white background.

A UNIQUE NEW FABRIC: The latest idea for blouses or long dresses and skirts is the 100% cotton material which resembles cheesecloth. The cloth is designed with bleeding stripes in subtle shades of orange, pink, blue, green and gold, and attractive plaids in red, yellow and white or green, blue and white are also shown.

TUBULAR KNITS: This appealing knit is ideal for pant suits and dresses and it consists of a textured weave, closely resembling eyelet. It is available in solid shades of pink, white, green, navy, red, blue, lavender and orange.

Other double knit fabrics also are featured in solid colors, but many display butterflies and tiny flowers, bright, multicolored stripes, or figures of cars, trees, flowers and puppy dogs.

YARNS: The latest yarns for those interested in knitting include the looped mohair in variegated shades; the completely washable and non-allergenic, four-ply knitting worsted yarn, which is 50% polyester and 50% orlon acrylic; and the mohair yarn, which is imported from Italy, in pastel shades of lavender, peach, blue and pink and muted hues of brown, green and gold.

AAUW Coffee

The members of the American Association of University Women will have a 9 o'clock coffee in the Miller and Paine Tearoom, at 13th and O Sts., on Saturday morning, Feb. 17.

The program for the event will be a discussion of "You and Your Dollars' Worth." Chairman for the coffee meeting is Mrs. Arthur Welty.

But They're Looking

The Harlem Globetrotters may not be an equal opportunity employer, but the all-black basketball team that will make its annual Lincoln appearance next Thursday night at Pershing Auditorium is always looking.

"We're not prejudiced," says Bobby Milton, former Globetrotter player, who now serves as an advance man for the touring basketball clowns. "We may have another white player on our team some day."

"Another?" That's a word that means there was one previously. "That's right, we had a white player on the Globetrotter team once," Milton responds.

"Back in the 1940s, a white player named Bob Carstens played two years with the Trotters."

The Globetrotters a couple of years ago tried to make LSU's Pete Maravich the second white player to perform their routines.

"We went after Pete pretty good," Milton points out. "He had the kind of showmanship we're interested in. He had drawing power and he could have played with us."

Jabbar The Other One

Maravich was one of two big-name college players the Globetrotters tried to outbid for basketball for, the other Kareem Abdul Jabbar (Lew Alcindor).

"We don't really get involved with trying to sign the same players as the NBA and ABA," Milton allows. "The NBA is looking for size and scoring ability."

"We look for personality and ball-handling ability. You can tell whether a player has personality by the way he responds on the court."

"We can't afford to take a hot-head because there's too many days for him to get hot."

The Globetrotters play virtually every night. For instance Wednesday night, they're in Omaha, Thursday in Lincoln, then Friday back in Omaha.

Maravich attracted attention from Globetrotter management because of his actions on the court, actions that were considered very unorthodox at times by veteran college basketball observers.

Moves and Nerves

"Pete was the first player in a long time to have the moves and the nerve to go with it to be a showman in college basketball," Milton says.

"Players, who did the things Pete did, had been stereotyped as hot dogs and showboats."

The Globetrotters are still looking for a Pete Maravich, but until they find one they're not going to integrate just as a token gesture.

"Carstens wasn't a token player," Milton stresses. "He played the position on our team that Meadowlark Lemon now plays, so he could hardly have been considered a token player."

"Probably some day, we'll have another white player with the Globetrotters."

British Fans Salute Bugner

LONDON (AP) — Joe Bugner lost to Muhammad Ali in Las Vegas but was lauded as a hero in Britain Thursday.

"Bugner the Brave," headlined the London Evening Standard.

The Evening News, in another front page splash, played up Ali's prediction that Bugner, 22-year-old European heavyweight champion, could be the world titleholder in two years. Ali scored a 12-round decision Wednesday night.

About 30,000 fans stayed up most of the night and packed into movie theaters around Britain to watch a closed circuit screening of the fight which started after 3 a.m. local time.

Some potential customers couldn't get in and police were called to sort out fights among disappointed fans outside two London theaters.

Police stopped about 20 people who were trying to climb over scaffolding into the back of the Odeon Theater in Leicester Square.

"We underestimated the interest and should have hired more men," confessed a spokesman for the closed circuit group. "We were completely sold out."

Among the crowd at one London West End site were 60 fans representing the 8,000 residents of rural St. Ives, where the Bugner family lives.

They joined in the biggest cheer of the night at the end of round seven when Ali failed to "send Bugner to heaven," as poetically promised British newspaper commentators saluted Bugner's effort but also warned against expecting too much too soon from the European champion.

Walter Bartleman, veteran boxing writer of the Evening Standard, said Bugner "defied all the sadistic ring skills of former world champion Muhammad Ali and was still on his feet after 12 punishing rounds."

"Yet while there is delight ... our Joe learned about world class heavyweight fighting in the most painful manner. So let there be no talk of a return bonanza meeting in London later this year."

Reg Gutteridge, reporting in the Evening News, declared: "Bugner was harassed, but there was seldom a chance that he would be crushed ... there were bold Bugner moments ... but he could not find the solution to the Muhammad Ali problem."

Champions Return To State Wrestling Meet

By Randy York
Prep Sports Writer

and Oakland-Craig's Paul Sok, first at 112 pounds last year.

Seventy-three wrestlers who received a medal for either first through fourth last year are in the 1973 field. Defending team champions are Bellevue in Class A, Alliance in Class B, Arnold in Class C and Clarks in Class D. Of those, Bellevue and Arnold appear capable of repeating.

although Arnold has moved down to the Class D ranks.

Bellevue qualified eight wrestlers for the state tournament and Arnold seven. Alliance and Clarks managed to advance only three wrestlers apiece to the state meet.

All three of Alliance's qualifiers, however, are favorites to annex state championships. They are Big Ten Conference titlists Paul Stavropoulos (22-0 at 105), Jack Girard (20-0 at 126) and Dan Brown (20-1 at 132). All three placed in the state meet last year.

Two of the three defending Class B champions are from Ashland. Bruce Rogers, 26-1 at 105, is the defending 98-pound champ. Teammate Bob Fricke has a 27-0 record in his bid to repeat at 185, which also includes Chadron's Steve Baker and Albion's Randy Christy.

Harrisburg's Roy Jerred will try to leave his mark on Nebraska prep wrestling history in the Class D ranks.

He's seeking his third consecutive state championship, having won at 126 as a sophomore and 132 as a junior. This year, he'll go at 138.

That pits him against another defending state champion, Wolbach's Ted Rother, who won at 126 last year. If Jerred accomplishes the three-in-row feat, he will join 21 other Nebraska prep wrestlers who have done it.

Other returning Class D champions are Arapahoe 105-pounder John Walbridge (98 last year), Butte 126-pounder Randy Hummel (who moved up three weight classes from 105), Bertrand 145-pounder Dale Meyer (138 last year) and Amherst 185-pounder Dennis Jameson.

Joining Oshkosh's Bell and Oakland-Craig's Sok as returning champions are Oakland-Craig 112-pounder Dale Magnusson (98 last year), Raymond Central 138-pounder Mark Kubik (132 last year), Bayard 145-pounder Kelly Liakos, Wakefield 155-pounder Kirk Gardner and North Bend heavyweight Mark Hines.

Two Star all-state gridders are competing in Class A — Omaha Westside 185-pounder Mark Boyer (middle guard) and Beatrice heavyweight John Plucknett (guard).

Boyer carries a 14-0 record into the tournament. He was third at 185 last year, defeating fourth place finisher Doug O'Mara of Lincoln East, who also returns.

Plucknett is seeking his third straight state medal. He was third at 185 as a sophomore and fourth as a heavyweight last year.

One of the favorites to win a Class B state title is also a standout football player. York's Steve Schulz, 167-pound favorite, was judged "the best all-around football player at York High in 25 years" last fall.

Ten weight divisions throughout the four classes will bring together two or more unbeatens individuals. Class A's feature may be 138 with Omaha Westside's Dave Pearce (24-0) and Grand Island's Gary Baldwin (23-0) competing in the same bracket.

Class B's 126-pound class includes three unbeatens in Albion's Kurt Kinney (23-0), Alliance's Girard (20-0) and Falls City's Wayne Schulenberg (15-0-1).

Class C also has a division (185) boasting three unbeatens in Hebron's Roger Virus (21-0-1), Winslow's Ed Lienemann (22-0) and Bridgeport's Lou Panas (24-0).

Class B's 112 includes Wahoo's Tom Hrdlicka (25-0) and Lexington's Tim Rimpley (26-0). B's 138 has Broken Bow's Tim Tierney (18-0-1) and Waverly's Terry Hesterman (25-0). And B's 185 includes Ashland's Fricke (27-0) and Albion's Christy (24-0).

In Class C, the 132 class includes Weeping Water's Ken Wollen (23-0) and Plainview's Dale Bonge (26-0) and the heavyweight class has Friend's Norm Freeman (25-0) and North Bend's Hines (23-0).

East's Rick Carr is the only unbeaten Lincoln wrestler in the state tournament. He has a 22-0 record at 167. That includes 17 pins.

Preliminaries Friday begin at 11 a.m. with quarterfinals at 6 p.m. and first round consolation matches at 8 p.m.

Saturday activity starts at 9 a.m. with championship seminals and second round consolation matches. Third round consolation bouts start at 2 p.m.

Consolation finals are scheduled for 6 p.m. with the championship finals set for 7:30 p.m.

LINKS SHOCK EAST

Fultz Guides 57-48 Victory

... Team Effort Prevails

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Mike Fultz almost had to pinch himself earlier in the basketball season after Lincoln High upset No. 1 Lincoln Northeast in three overtimes.

But the 6-5 possible Nebraska football recruit didn't have to pinch himself Thursday night at Pershing Auditorium.

The torrid-shooting, giant-killing, but unranked Links registered an equally impressive upset, 57-48, over third-ranked Lincoln East.

"Against Northeast, we really didn't know what to make of it," said Fultz, who contributed 14 points and invaluable hustle to the upset, achieved without the services of high-scoring starter Bob Folsom.

said Johnson, named this week to coach a Nebraska all-star basketball team this summer.

That "line" is the free throw line where, Johnson said, "we've lost five of our seven games." The Links now stand 7-7 against a schedule many consider among the toughest in the state.

"Tonight," he added, "we knew it was there from the start. We could comprehend it. We gave 110 per cent and looked like a Class A basketball team."

"Tonight," he added, "we knew it was there from the start. We could comprehend it. We gave 110 per cent and looked like a Class A basketball team."

The score gives little indication to the Links' domination. Shooting 69 per cent from the field in the first half and 59 per cent through three quarters, the Links protected a bulging 18-point lead.

Consequently, coach Aldy Johnson's club put only seven shots into the air the fourth quarter and scored only four points.

But the game, for all practical purposes, had been decided. East never seriously threatened.

"It was a great team effort. I can't stress that enough," said Fultz. "In fact, we were more together tonight than we were against Northeast. We still hadn't found ourselves the first time. Tonight I think we did."

It was indeed, a team effort. Steve Harris, who hit 6 of 10 field goals, had 16 points, Fultz 14, guard Don Madlock 13 and Paul Grosscup 10.

"East was going out and trying to put the clamps on Don," said Fultz, who finished 7 of 11 from the field. "And that left the middle wide open for me. We had a lot of good screens and rolls."

Hot shooting wasn't the only thing carrying the Links, however. They also outplayed East on defense and on the boards.

All of this without three-year starter Folsom, sidelined with mononucleosis.

"We've done a lot of things well all year. There's just a thin line separating us from the top."

"We slowed it up a little more than we wanted in the fourth quarter," admitted Johnson, whose club zoomed to a 22-10 first quarter lead by hitting 11 of 15 shots.

The Links then canned 7 of 11 in the second period for a comfortable 38-26 halftime advantage.

"It was apparent what was going to happen in the first quarter," lamented East coach Paul Forch after the Spartans dropped their third decision in 13 games.

For the game, Lincoln High shot 53 per cent and East 34 per cent.

Third Texan Inks NU Letter

Nebraska has signed a third Texas high school athlete to a Big 8 football letter-of-intent.

High school all-American Charles (Chuck) Baker of Port Arthur, who many term the best wide receiver in Texas, Wednesday signed with NU. Baker was signed by Jerry Moore, former SMU assistant who recently joined the Husker staff.

Moore earlier signed Jason Justice and Jeff Rose, both of LaMarque, Texas.

The 6-2 190-pound Baker, who played for Lincoln High School in Port Arthur, has several Nebraska ties.

His brother attends Doane College in Crete and he has relatives living in Omaha, Lawrence Baker, Ernest Baker and Clarence Tyler.

In his senior year, Baker caught 43 passes for 759 yards and 9 touchdowns, averaging 17.7 yards-per-catch. He also returned kickoffs and punts, returning one punt for 86 yards and a touchdown.

NU Wrestlers Meet Wyoming

The University of Nebraska wrestling team Saturday will try to break a record set two years ago at the Nebraska state high school wrestling championships.

The Cornhuskers will use three mats simultaneously at Pershing Auditorium in a 3:30 p.m. dual against Wyoming. Two years ago, they set a "speed" record with a 24-minute dual against Northwest Missouri.

Improvements in swimming facilities might also be included if the funds were made available by the Legislature.

Arguing for additional arena seats, Carpenter said, "we should be looking ahead 50 years" instead of building for today.

"I want a building big enough to handle anything between Chicago and Denver," he declared.

Devaney said he wouldn't object to more seats, but doubts that they are needed.

"I want that damn building enlarged," Carpenter insisted. "The reason is that I want it. You would never have gotten it without Carpenter."

Devaney said redesign of the structure to provide additional seating immediately would delay its construction.

"I'd like to see this get going so we'll see it in our lifetime," he noted.

NU President D. B. Varner said he too is anxious to begin construction, but the university will respond to the Legislature's wishes.

Devaney, Senator Debate Building Issue

By DON WALTON

The proposed new University of Nebraska fieldhouse may be redesigned to provide for possible future expansion to a capacity of 20,000 arena seats.

And, on the other hand, it may not.

That was the upshot of a rather stormy and inconclusive breakfast session Thursday involving NU officials and Sens. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff and Jules Burchard of Crofton.

Carpenter said he wants seating capacity in the arena portion of the fieldhouse increased now from 15,000 to at least 18,000 seats.

Player Group Meets Friday

NEW YORK (AP) — The Executive Board of the Major League Baseball Players Association will discuss Friday an owners' offer which it is expected to pass on to the entire membership, an action that probably would delay the official March 1 opening of spring training.

The board, comprised of the 24 club representatives, was scheduled to meet with Executive Director Marvin Miller at a midtown hotel starting at 11 a.m. EST.

"There has been a feeling expressed that this matter is of sufficient importance to be taken to the entire membership," said Miller, who added that such an action would take from two to three weeks because the players are scattered all over.

Action on three-year proposals covering the pension-benefit plan and the Basic Agreement.

Cage Action Slackens

With the state high school wrestling tournament in Lincoln this weekend, prep basketball activity is at a season low.

No games are scheduled in the Capital City Friday night and only one is set for Saturday night — Grand Island at Lincoln High in a makeup Trans-Nebraska Conference game which was postponed from Jan. 27 because of inclement weather. It will be played at Johnson Gym.

Lincoln Pius X is involved in two of the four weekend games. The Thunderbolts play at David City Aquinas Friday night and travel to Omaha Saturday night to play defending state Class B champion Omaha Cathedral.

The other weekend contest sends ninth-ranked Lincoln Southeast (8-6) to Kearney (11-5), bidding to represent the West division in the annual Big Ten Conference playoff.

Basketball attention will focus Monday night at Pershing Auditorium on a rematch between No. 1-ranked Lincoln Northeast and No. 3-ranked Lincoln East.

which covers active player-owner dealings, could be taken much faster if many of the players were in camps for early spring training, Miller said.

The American and National Leagues announced last week that early training, which is by invitation and involves mainly pitchers and catchers, was being delayed because of the negotiations.

Miller termed the action an illegal threat of a lockout and said the Players Association would consider it a lockout if the camps don't open March 1. Individual player contracts call for them to report March 1.

The key issues involved in the negotiations are the reserve clause and arbitration of individual contracts.

The players have proposed to postpone action on the reserve clause, which binds a player to a team until he is released, traded or retires, by submitting it to a joint study committee for consideration for a year.

But the owners want any action taken on reserve rules to be included in a three-year settlement of the Basic Agreement, pointing out that a year's study period would only mean lengthy negotiations again next year and possibly a strike.

The Players Association wants the individual player to have the right to negotiate the best deal for himself with any club after he has been in the majors for seven years. The owners balk at this. They have proposed that a minimum salary of $30,000 be set for players with five years in the majors and a minimum of $40,000 be set for eight years and then if a club does not offer the minimum, the player will be free to negotiate with another club.

Miller labeled the owners' proposal on arbitration the "worthless arbitration proposal."

Two of his main objections to the proposal were that a player could not ask for arbitration two years in a row, and that a player eligible for arbitration after three years in the majors, would not be protected by the maximum salary cut clause which is 20 per cent.

A source close to the owners said that the arbitration proposal was negotiable.

The pension agreement, which expires March 31, is not seen as a stumbling block. The players wanted a four-year pact when the agreement was reached last year but the owners held out for a one-year pact, saying they wanted to be able to negotiate the pension and general agreements at the same time rather than having them staggered.

Moss Criticizes Nixon For 'Sports Safety'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon was accused Thursday of merely standing on the sidelines and cheering instead of joining an effort to improve sports safety.

Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., said the White House had been "derelict" in failing to name the members of a commission created by Congress to promote safe consumer products and ways to reduce injuries to skiers, football players and other athletes.

Moss, in a speech prepared for delivery at the National Sports Safety Congress in Cincinnati, Ohio, and released here, said President Nixon had said a bill to establish the commission was "the most significant piece of safety legislation" passed by the last Congress when he signed it in October.

"Despite such promising rhetoric," Moss said, "we have now had over three months go by, and yet the Administration has not named one commissioner, let alone five."

Moss said the Consumer Product Safety Commission created by the 1972 law had broad powers and that sports injuries would be "a natural target" for the commission.

The extent of the problem is such, the California congressman said, that more children and adolescents are injured in recreational and sports activities than from any other cause—including auto accidents and burns.

At least 630,000 persons between the ages of 5 and 17 are reported injured each year in sports activities, he said.

Coach Woody Greeno's Nebraska Wesleyan track team will make its indoor home debut Friday afternoon at the Nebraska Indoor Track in a triangular with Bethel, Kan., and Sioux Falls, S. D.

favorite with a lot of depth in the middle and long distances.

In the Plainsmen's last outing, Greeno took 11 teams members to a Fargo, N. D., meet to compete with North Central Conference teams and all 11 earned places.

The field events will start at 2 and the running events at 2:45. Individual events will be scored 5-3-2-1 and the mile relay 5-3.

Greeno plans to enter 23 Plainsmen in the meet, while Sioux Falls is expected to bring 22 athletes and Bethel about 10. "We don't know much about either Sioux Falls or Bethel as far as their strength as a team," Greeno said. "However, both have some outstanding individuals."

The South Dakota team reportedly has a 14-foot pole vaulter, a good shot putter, fair dashmen and a good mile relay team.

Bethel has an excellent hurdle corps in Phil Everett, Quenton Reimer, Bill Jones and Dave Ortmann, according to Greeno. The Kansas' Chuck Klassen has run the 600 in excellent time, based on the time turned in to Greeno.

Even with the two guest teams possessing some outstanding individuals, NWU will be the meet Wesleyan's Bob Graham, Kurt Nielsen and Ron Greeno all set meet records in winning at Fargo. Graham also broke one of his school records and tied another at the same meet.

READY AT FONNER . . . Arian Ray with Mrs. Wayne Riney.

Guzinski Anxious For Fonner Opening

Grand Island — Ray Guzinski, a Ravenna farmer, is anxiously awaiting the opening of the 40-day racing season in Grand Island on March 2 with the start of the 1973 racing season at Fonner Park giving him the opportunity to see his highly successful homebred Arian Ray in action again.

Arian Ray was bred, raised, and raced by Guzinski, doubling his feeling of accomplishment in the success of the good thoroughbred. The 4 year old is out of the Royal Gem 2nd mare Fleet Gem and by Vanceburg, who stands at the Paul M. Kemling farm at Aurora.

Arian Ray was not long in proving that he was the best thoroughbred ever raised by his owner. Guzinski saw the bay youngster earn $21,395 as a 2 year old in 1971 with eight triumphs, one second, and five thirds. The list of wins included five stakes triumphs.

The Ravenna owner must have had some misgivings about Arian Ray in 1972 as he was off to a slow start. He did not win a race until the first week in August at the Nebraska State Fairgrounds in Lincoln.

Once he had found his best stride he was not long in running up a total of six wins and earnings of $16,533 for the season. He closed out the year by scoring four consecutive victories! The final three were important wins in the Sioux Handicap, the Atokad Derby, and the Atokad Handicap.

Devaney To Appear With Howard Cosell

Omaha (UPI) Nebraska athletic director Bob Devaney will join national television commentator Howard Cosell at the B'Nai B'Rith Benefit Stag to be held at Peony Park Wednesday.

The retired head football coach will bypass a Big Eight football session with officials of ABC's NCAA football game of the week because of the charity event. New Husker coach Tom Osborne will attend the football parley, however.

Arian Ray is a product of Nebraska's increased stakes program for young horses. His success is proof that horses need not leave the state to have earnings in five figures.

Wayne Riney of South Sioux City has Arian Ray in Grand Island now preparing for the coming season. Trainer Riney also has Spring Practice, Maintainer, Blue Mirage, W. L. Sawyer, and Lorna B. in his care.

Annapolis, Md. (AP) — George Welch was named Thursday as head football coach at the U.S. Naval Academy where he was once a quarterback.

Welsh, an assistant at Penn State for the past 10 years, replaces Rick Forzano who quit the academy to become an assistant coach with the Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

Welsh was a Navy quarterback from 1953 through 1955, leading the nation in total offense and yards passing during his senior year while setting eight academy records.

In 1954, he led the Middies to an 8-2 record, including a 27-20 upset over Army and a 21-0 victory over Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl.

Carlton Top Pro Athlete

Chicago (AP) — Cy Young Award winner Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phils, a close choice over golf star Jack Nicklaus, was named Thursday the Hickok "Professional Athlete of the Year" for 1972.

Carlton, last season's winningest National League pitcher with a 27-10 record for the last-place Phils, will receive a $15,000 diamond-studded, gold-buckled belt at a special awards dinner here Sunday night.

A nationwide committee of sports writers and sportscasters voting in the Hickok poll gave the 6-foot-5 southpaw 81 first-place votes and 349 points, 22 more than Nicklaus.

tournaments, including the Masters and PGA, received 67 first-place votes and 327 points.

Farm Irrigators Back Gas Rate-Setting Bill

By United Press International
About 50 farm irrigators lined up in support of a bill to allow the State Oil and Gas Commission to step into the rate-setting seat of the natural gas industry Thursday.

But representatives of Cengas and Peoples Natural Gas said the bill, LB78, would do nothing but ultimately increase rates by replacing what they termed "a simple rate-setting mechanism" with a costly one.

The bill to give the commission the authority to set rates was introduced this year by Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney and Herb Duis of Gothenburg.

Sidney, three years ago, took a case to the Supreme Court on natural gas rate setting and won. But Clark said its victory lasted about 30 days. At the end of that time, he said Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas initiated another rate increase and Sidney didn't have about $30,000 to fund another lawsuit.

The same bill was introduced in last year's session and lost out only when it reached the final reading stage of the legislative process.

Clark said he knew the gas companies would oppose the bill, and said it wasn't for their benefit.

"This is a people's bill," he said. "We're trying to protect the people and not the gas companies."

Under the present rate-setting mechanism, gas companies must negotiate with each city council of each town served. Clark said that process puts the council in an unfavorable position because it doesn't have the technical ability to pass judgment on rates.

Richard Mayne, a vice president of Peoples Natural Gas, taking note of the presence of the farm irrigators in support of the measure, said he didn't feel the regulation of rates by the oil and gas commission would help either them or the municipalities.

The testimony of the irrigators centered primarily on protests of the interruptible supply contracts they have which hampered the handling of this year's late harvest.

Mayne said it appears that because of federal regulation trends and declining gas supplies the interruptible contracts are on the way out.

"The interruptible service situation is going to be more serious as time goes on," he said.

As to the municipalities, he said the companies now offer the best rates they can and any additional costly probing by a government agency would only add to already skyrocketing rates.

Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha, however, asked each witness about the checks and balances of the system.

Cecil Brubaker, representing the Metropolitan Utilities District of Omaha, told Cavanaugh that Auburn and Nebraska City could tell him first hand what the ultimate check is.

"Auburn and Nebraska City have their own systems and that's a high price for a gas company to pay for its investment," Brubaker said.

The committee took no action on that bill or another, LB330, sponsored by Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln to modify qualifications for abstractors.

Diesel Fuel Use Likely To Increase

Nebraska's farmers will need from 16 to 20 million more gallons of diesel fuel equivalent to farm the extra land they are expected to have in crops this year.

The estimate was made by the Nebraska State Emergency Board headed by Paul Sindt of Lincoln.

A tabulation of reports gathered from county offices indicates that the new relaxed rules on land operated by Nebraska farmers could release 1,838,000 acres for use in crops that was not farmed last year.

The estimate suggests that 992,000 acres will be planted to feed grains, 272,000 acres to soybeans, 385,000 acres to be summer tilled and 189,000 acres used to grow hay, small grains and for pasture.

Dr. William Splinter, chairman of the University of Nebraska Department of Agriculture Engineering, a member of the committee also reported that the state's farmers will have 2,000 new irrigation wells in operation creating additional demands for fuel.

Douglas Murfield, head of the State-Federal Agricultural Statistical Reporting Service, reported that a survey of farmers planting intentions would be made in the middle of March.

The report has been made available to the state Civil Defense Agency and related transportation agencies, according to state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service officials.

Unicam Pay Hike Bill Advances

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Voters bought the idea in 1960 and 1968, so the Legislature's Constitutional Revision Committee Thursday went along with a salary figure and the wording advocated by Omaha Sen. George Syas to raise senators' pay to $8,100 per year.

In advancing LB232 by a unanimous vote, the committee's younger members desiring either a different approach or a higher figure yielded to the Legislative veteran's knowledge of voter psychology.

LB232, if approved by the voters in 1974, authorizes the Legislature to set senators' salaries "not to exceed $875 per month." The current salary is limited to $400 per month by the Constitution. The bill was amended to $675 from $600.

Syas, who engineered the Legislature's last two pay raises, attributed those successes to a combination of the figure and the phrase "not to exceed."

Syas reasoned, "You say $600 and they say you're increasing salaries by 50%. You move to $800 and opponents charge you're doubling salaries."

"But you go to around $700, and it gets a little confusing."

Sen. Ralph Kelly, a freshman legislator from Grand Island, favored $800 per month but gave in to Syas after his motion failed saying, "I yield to the politicians."

Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton went along with the $875 figure saying the $800 plan would "absolutely run out of steam."

Kelly questioned how Syas and Burbach arrived at the figures which they felt would be acceptable to the electorate and suggested the Legislature might poll Nebraskans on the subject.

Discounting the poll approach, Syas said his approach is "not scientific—it's successful."

Syas and Burbach added that these same political realities doom another way of increasing legislators' pay, LB289 offered by Sen. John DeCamp.

The bill would put before the voters a proposal for a Citizens Salary Control Committee to set legislative salaries every two years. It would consist of the Chief Justice and one other member of the State Supreme Court, the Governor, the Secretary of State, a member of the news media and four registered voters selected at random.

That approach, which is used in 20 other states, would remove all constitutional limitations on senators' salaries.

"It's right. It's better (than LB232)," Syas said, "but you won't get it past the voters. It's too open-ended."

Heeding Syas' advice, the committee delayed any action on the bill until LB232's fate is known. Committee members felt the fact that there were three legislative pay proposals on the November 1972 ballot hurt their cause. All three were defeated.

If adopted by the Legislature and the voters, LB232 would raise salaries for the January 1975 session after they are set at a special session after the election.

In other action, the committee:

—advanced LB163, which transfers Cottonmill, Stolley, Arnold and Long Bridge State Recreation Areas from the State Game and Parks Commission to Kearney, Grand Island, Custer County and Merrick County, respectively.

—advanced LB138, which allows resid. veterans free hunting and fishing rights.

—killed LBs 41 and 63.

Kearney (UPI) — A 17-year-old Kearney youth has been sentenced to the State Penitentiary in Lincoln on a robbery and rape charge.

Gerald Thompson appeared before Buffalo County District Judge S. S. Sidner and entered a plea of guilty. He was charged in connection with an incident Dec. 26 involving a 20-year-old Kearney State College coed at a sorority house here.

Sidner accepted the plea after reviewing the results of a psychiatric examination which showed Thompson competent to stand trial.

The youth was sentenced to 3-10 years on the robbery charge and five years on the rape charge. The sentences will run concurrently.

Thompson had been associated with the Mid-Nebraska Vocational Services, a sheltered workshop for the mentally retarded.

Indian Commission Changes Advanced

By The Associated Press
Nebraska's legislators sympathized Thursday with American Indians and the abuses in treatment to which they have been subjected over the years, but had trouble agreeing on how to meet the Indian problem.

Out of an hour-and-a-half discussion on the floor of the Legislature came first round advancement of a bill calling for a reorganization of the state's Commission on Indian Affairs.

The general file approval went to Crofton Sen. J. W. Burbach's LB37, which increases commission membership from 13 to 15, provides for tribal and geographic distribution, pays the members $35 per day of service and requires monthly meetings. A companion measure, appropriating $6,300 to fund the per-diem payments, moved ahead 30-0.

Revised Version Nixed
Lawmakers turned down 23-12 a revised version of LB37, offered by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff. Carpenter proposed to reduce membership on the commission to nine. Three members each would be appointed by tribal councils of the three main Nebraska tribes — Omaha, Winnebago and Santee.

LB37 as approved also calls for nine members representing the three tribes, but provides also for membership by non-reservation Indians from specific localities in the state.

Carpenter contended the present commission "does not represent anybody but a small group of people who have taken it over and have no intentions of carrying out the original intent of the commission."

"Will Do No Good"
Carpenter contended the bill in any form will do no good.

"It's giving a sop to those who are causing the problem," he said.

The senators referred frequently to confrontations and violence involving Indians which have occurred in Nebraska and South Dakota.

Carpenter, whose home town has been involved, said the situation in his area "could bring the return of vigilantes, if the law cannot protect the citizen."

Sen. Leslie Stull of Alliance cautioned against judging all Indians "by a few of the bad ones."

No Cure-All
Burbach acknowledged that the reorganized commission "is not going to be a cure-all for the problem."

"It may not stop violent acts but I assure you you are going to minimize the acts by giving the commission some authority."

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha, the Legislature's only black member, said "It's not an Indian problem, it's an attitude toward Indians."

Chambers criticized Gov. J. James Exon for having referred on occasion to Indians as "renegades," and said it demonstrated Exon's "insensitivity" to this minority group. But Carpenter said Exon was not calling all Indians renegades, and in giving the description to a few troublemakers, "he was 100% correct."

Probation Work Backed For Ex-Cons

By The Associated Press
The Legislature Thursday gave first round approval to a bill permitting ex-offenders to be heard as probation officers.

The measure, LB126, is one of a package of bills sponsored by the Judiciary Committee as part of a correctional and penal reform program.

LB126 was advanced from general file on a 25-1 vote, one of nine bills given first-stage floor approval by the legislators during a morning session. Most of the bills related to minor matters.

Under the terms of LB126, an ex-offender, whether convicted of a felony or misdemeanor, could be appointed as a probation officer if he or she maintained an arrest-free record for one year preceding the appointment. The required time period was originally two years, but that was halved by the Judiciary Committee.

Under questioning by Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell as to why the bill was needed, Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said counseling is a "serious problem" in probation cases.

Using ex-offenders as probation officers would permit probationers to "talk with someone and know that the person understands," Luedtke said.

Such probation officer might help keep persons on probation "on the straight and narrow," Luedtke said.

Also approved on general file on a 28-0 vote was LB116, permitting a court to set interpreters' fees when an interpreter is needed in a legal proceeding for a deaf person or person who does not speak English.

There are many cases where a communications barrier causes problems in legal matters, said Sen. George Syas of Omaha, the sponsor of LB116.

Committee Rejects Contract Negotiation

By United Press International
A bill over which there was sharp disagreement between the assistant general manager of the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) and a member of the district's board of directors was killed, 6-1, by a legislative committee Thursday.

LB11, sponsored by Omaha Sen. Richard Proud, had the strong backing of Delbert Dirrim, OPPD's assistant general manager, but was opposed by Ed Jorinsky, a member of the board of directors.

The bill was heard several times by the Public Works Committee, which postponed action on it until Thursday while further information was sought.

It would have, with the permission of the Nebraska Power Review Board, authorized the negotiation of contracts for construction of any power plant of 400 megawatts or more — conventional as well as atomic.

At the earlier hearing, Dirrim argued that it takes six to nine years to get such plants built and that it is difficult to get firm bids for their construction.

It is extremely hard for governing boards to anticipate that far in the future what they will run into in the way of labor costs and construction changes demanded by governmental agencies, he said. This is especially true regarding nuclear facilities, Dirrim emphasized.

Zorinsky, who with Dirrim appeared before the committee again Thursday, said OPPD's legal counsel has advised that the board of directors can legally declare an emergency if there is not time for the bid-letting process or if bids can't be attracted.

Fred Hawkins, representing the Associated General Contractors, said contractors oppose the bill because:

—Historically, the construction industry was built on the competitive bid system "and we object to its elimination."

—The best protection for the public is through competitive bidding.

—Negotiated contracts would not solve the problems of those responsible for getting power plants built.

—There has been a "big difference" in the bids submitted on power plants.

Hawkins said he also believes that eventually there will be "a reasonably small amount of changes" ordered during construction of power facilities, even atomic plants.

Dirrim said the need for flexibility on the part of power district governing boards was greater when dealing with nuclear plants "but our people think it would also be helpful for conventional plants."

There is also a difference of opinion, he said, on just how far a board's authority stretches under the emergency section of the law cited by Zorinsky.

Letter On REAP Draws Fire

By The Associated Press
A Nixon administration letter justifying abandonment of the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) aroused the ire of a number of Nebraska state senators Thursday.

For a time, lawmakers toyed with the idea of refusing even to permit publication of the letter in the unicameral journal.

Senators finally agreed to the routine printing, but promised a full scale reaction debate later, probably Friday.

The letter from Elvin J. Person, acting administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), responded to a resolution passed earlier by the Legislature, protesting the dropping of REAP.

Person's letter said the Nixon administration is attacking inflation by restricting 1973 federal budget outlays to $250 billion.

"In order to do that, it is necessary to trim many programs, as good as they are, and eliminate some of lower priority. It isn't that these lower priority programs aren't useful, but we must terminate some programs in order to meet the budget limitation and successfully counteract the critical problem of inflation. Given that choice, you eliminate those programs of lower priority in agriculture and in all departments. On this basis, funding for the REAP was terminated."

Success Claimed
The letter claimed "considerable progress in the last four years in increasing farm income." Net farm income in 1972 was $18.9 billion, up 28% from 1968, the letter said.

Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln said the letter supports his contention that legislative resolutions are ineffectual and simply result in adverse publicity. "They answer by their own propaganda," he noted.

Sen. George Syas of Omaha said the upshot of Thursday's discussion would be to give the letter more publicity than it ever would have received were it simply printed in the journal. "Now you're going to put this on every front page," Syas said. Sen. Herb Nore of Genoa and others condemned the administration for unleashing grain on the market just when prices were reaching a level profitable to farmers.

But Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell said the administration "has done the best job in half a century" in its farm programs.

Firms In Italy Claim Losses

Rome (AP) — Foreign oil companies operating in Italy say they are losing 10 cents on every gallon of high-test gasoline they sell in the country, and use Italian government figures to prove it.

At the same time, Italy collects 87 cents in taxes for every gallon sold.

POW Sees Son For First Time

Air Force Capt. Hayden J. Lockhart Jr. was the third American pilot shot down over North Vietnam and Thursday saw his son Jamie for the first time. Jamie, 7, was born two months after his father was shot down in March, 1965. Here Jamie shakes hands with his father as wife Jill looks on during the arrival at Travis Air Force Base, Calif. It was like two men meeting each other for the first time. The Lockharts, of Alexandria, La., got better acquainted later in rooms set aside for them.

Five Chicago youths were being held by Lincoln police in connection with a purse snatching at the Piedmont Shopping Center at Cotner and A Thursday afternoon.

Police said two 15-year-old boys were apprehended at 1:40 about 30 minutes after they allegedly took a purse belonging to Mrs. Hal Lymes of 3410 Otoe as she was leaving the Safeway store.

Police said nearly all the money was recovered.
A 17-year-old boy and two 15-year-old girls are being held as runaways for Chicago authorities.

The youths are also wanted in connection with a purse snatching in Omaha.

Stocks Continue To Wilt

New York (AP) — The heat seemed to be off on the stock market Thursday, but prices continued to wilt.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks sank 6.78 points to 973.13, after a steep 16.85 drop Wednesday. Volume cooled to 13.94 million shares from Wednesday's 16.52 million on the New York Stock Exchange.

Declining issues outweighed those advancing by 937 to 475 on the Big Board.

Signs that the U.S. dollar was gaining strength against other currencies appeared to reduce selling pressure in the market, analysts said, but the international monetary picture was still too uncertain to prompt any buying wave.

"I think everybody's still confused and trying to get his breath," noted Lucien Hooper of W. E. Hutton & Co.

Texas Gulf was the Big Board's most-active issue, shipping 7% to 23% Monroe Auto Equipment was the second-most-active and also the exchange's biggest percentage loser, falling 3 1/2 to 27%. The descent followed a 134,000-share block trade at 27 1/2 and an analysts negative comments on the stock in Thursday's Wall Street Journal.

Dan River advanced 7 1/2 to 11 1/2 after an announcement of an agreement in principle under which the company would acquire the company Beatrice closed at 26 1/2 after a 1972-73 earnings better profitability in 1973.

Alaska Interstate was off 2% to 29 1/2 after continued uncertainty over the firm's Alaska pipeline after a court ruling last week that restored a construction ban on the project.

On the American Stock Exchange, National General's new warrants were sold in volume, leading to a 10% rise to 6 1/2. A 137,000 share block of the warrants changed hands at 6 1/2.

The Ames's price change index closed at 25.41 down 0.16. The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,400 common stocks declined 0.15 to 1,000.4. The NASDAQ composite index for the Over the Counter market posted a 99 decline to 124.43.

City-Wide Tenants Group Elects Bivens President

Steve Bivens was elected president of the City-Wide Tenants Association Thursday night.

Other officers named are Bea Richmond, vice president; Marilyn Tyson, secretary-treasurer; and Bill Drannen, committee coordinator.

Bivens succeeds Mrs. Richmond as president of the organization.

In other business, the group voted unanimously to support a proposed amendment to the city charter which would require specific planning studies for highway projects over $15 million.

Aimed at the proposed Northeast Radial, the amendment would require an environmental impact study, a cost-benefit study and other studies to be made before construction could be started.

Signatures Needed
City-Wide member Bill Arfman said that if they can get 3,000 to 4,000 signatures on the petition by March 20th the proposed amendment will be placed on the spring ballot.

The group also voted to join the Coalition Against the Northeast Radial. The coalition is an organization of approximately 10 neighborhood and environmental groups.

against the construction of the radial.

Two prospective candidates for the City Council addressed the group Thursday night.

John Two Birds Arbuckle, who has been active in the American Indian Movement and the United Indians of Nebraska, said he is running in an attempt to get fair representation for low income people and minorities.

Arbuckle said he is presently opposed to the attempt by the State Legislature to force election of City Council members by district in Lincoln.

He said he feels the council should have the opportunity to take that step themselves, adding that if the council does not act, he will support the

Legislature's proposal

Some Support
Arbuckle said he has received some support from businessmen in Havelock.

Mrs. Wilma Street, the other candidate, cited the need for change in the Lincoln Housing Authority as her primary campaign issue.

She said the housing authority rules need revision and there is a need for low income people on the Housing Authority board.

Mrs. Street also said the Human Rights Commission "needs to get out from under Sam's (Mayor Schwartzkopf's) thumb."

She told the group that under the present arrangement the commission "can't really do the job it has to do."

Rogers Urges National Unity

Washington — His eyes brimming with tears and his voice breaking, Secretary of State William P. Rogers appealed for national unity Thursday, and said in a reference to the returning prisoners of war, "I think it's time we all took a little pride in our country."

The scene came at the end of a long news conference in which Rogers covered a wide range of subjects including the administration's efforts to deal with congressional opposition to contemplated postwar American aid to North Vietnam.

During the conference, held at the State Department, Rogers handled questions easily on Cuba, the Middle East, Vietnam, China, India and Europe.

He became visibly emotional, however, when he was asked to justify the administration's hard line toward draft evaders at the same time it was seeking an era of reconciliation with Hanoi.

Rogers, who was attorney general in the Eisenhower administration, began by noting that while American law provided outlets for conscientious objectors, "we have a system that says that you are required to respond to a draft."

Voice Rises
His voice rising, Rogers went on:

"Now, in cases where people resisted, and fled or deserted that means that someone else had to take their place. Someone else had to serve for them, someone else may have been killed because they refused to serve."

"We had, what, three million men serve in Vietnam, and we had 46,000 battle casualties."

He said that with the war over it was important for the country to attempt to get together and to have a period of reconciliation, "but he added that the administration would not permit unjustified attacks to remain unanswered."

And as far as the administration

tion is concerned," he said, his eyes visibly becoming moist, "we want very much to get on with the business of peace and reconstruction here, and I can't think of anything that gets us off to a better start than to watch these returning POWs."

"If that doesn't make America proud," he said, pausing, "then I don't know what will. I think it is time that all of us took a little pride in our country."

Many of the questions dealt with the growing signs of opposition to Capitol Hill to the administration's declared policy of providing an undisclosed amount of postwar reconstruction aid to North Vietnam and other Indochina countries.

"Difficult"
He acknowledged the difficulty "faced in Congress on the issue of postwar aid saying:

"It is certainly an understandable political argument to make that why should we help other nations particularly one with which we have been at war, when we are not able to do all of the things that we would like to do at home."

He said that while such a "rationale" has existed ever since there was foreign aid, the United States had always believed it had "certain obligations to comply with, to fulfill."

We will have a problem with Congress, he went on. "And we will have to make it clear to Congress that this makes sense."

We will have to consult with them and cooperate with them and try to involve their interest in this subject. It is not going to be easy. We recognize that.

"But we don't think it is going to fail," he said optimistically. "We think that, as in the past, Congress when it finally finds out all the facts and gives full consideration to the problems and the implications of failing to help — I think Congress will react responsibly. They did after World War II. They have done it in many instances and I think they will again."

He said that with the war over it was important for the country to attempt to get together and to have a period of reconciliation, "but he added that the administration would not permit unjustified attacks to remain unanswered."

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
